ABILENE, Kan. (AP) — The body of Dwight David Eisenhower was laid to rest today at the end of the long trail that had carried him to the pinnacle of American military and political power.

Vault Next to Son

The tomb of the 34th president of the United States was a vault—next to that of a long-dead son—beneath the floor of a tiny chapel near the Eisenhower Library in the quiet farm town of his youth.

Cannons boomed a 21-gun salute and riflemen loosed three volleys as the final rites for the general came to a close.

aged baggage car until the moment arrived for the beginning of the final tribute.

It was then transferred to a hearse for the 45-minute procession through the streets of Eisenhower's boyhood home town. Dignitaries—including his vice president for eight years, President Nixon—followed in the procession behind Mrs. Eisenhower and the hearse as it wound its way through town toward the chapel.

Measured Steps

Military units in full dress led the procession in its measured steps to the rumble of muffled drums and military flourishes.

156th in Ike Salute

KINGSTON
Battery "A" of Poughkeepsie, a unit of the 156th Artillery will fire a 50-gun salute at five second intervals during military ceremonies in Albany at 5 o'clock today honoring former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Captain Patrick J. McIntyre of Poughkeepsie, commander of Battery "A" will be in charge of the ceremonial detail. First Lieutenant John F. Whitaker, Kingston, Battery executive officer and CW4 John G. Reynolds of Port Ewen will assist.

A bugler sounded Taps, the soldier's farewell.

As the honor guard handed the folded stars and stripes that had covered the five-star general's plain, GI coffin, to his widow, the strains of the West Point alma mater were heard by the hundreds massed in silence on the grounds of the Eisenhower Center.

Thus, with full military honors, the nation said goodbye to the man who had commanded a mighty Allied war machine to victory over Nazi Germany in World War II, then led the nation as president through eight years of peace.

The train bearing the body and the former president's family finally pulled into this town of 8,000 around dawn, after a long journey from Washington and a three-day state funeral.

A military honor guard watched over the coffin in its

A brief prayer service, originally scheduled to be held on the steps of the Eisenhower Library, was conducted in the library auditorium. Family and dignitaries sat near the flag-shrouded coffin.

The service was moved inside because of a mild-chill index factor of about 30 degrees.

Only the family and very close friends were admitted for the final moments of the nation's tribute in the tiny chapel, some 100 yards away.

The words of the burial service, however, were carried through loudspeakers to the crowds outside. Across the street was the simple white frame house where the Abilene hero had spent his childhood before heading for West Point and the military career that launched him to greatness.

Then the Eisenhower family left the chapel before the lowering of the casket into its vault, and headed for seclusion.

The placid town of Abilene—once the end of the trail for cowpokes herding their cattle from Texas to the Great Plains—resembled an armed camp as the Army made the final salute.

Up to 100,000 persons—dignitaries and the ordinary Americans who made him their leader—were on hand.

The soldiers strove to lend to the final rites the crisp efficiency Ike Eisenhower, who died Friday in Washington, D.C., might have wished. Their chores were complicated ed by the constant requirement the little stores of downtown Abilene were sealed along the route of the stately, 45-minute military procession.

Thousands of Americans came out to wave goodbye as the 12-unit funeral train made its way into the Midwest from the three-day state funeral in sidewalk elevators in front of the nation's capital.

GRIEVING WIDOW — Mamie Eisenhower is dressed in a black mourning dress as she steps on the rear platform of the Eisenhower funeral train in Union Station, St. Louis. "I am most grateful for all these expressions of respect and love. I am very proud," the former First Lady said. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Ulster—A State Dump

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON
A plan to transport Westchester County's garbage by railroad and dump it in Ulster County was uncovered recently. The Freeman learned today.

Elmendorf Moves

As a result, a move to block possible state plans to transport solid wastes from growing metropolitan areas to the north and south into Ulster County was taken today by County Legislator Lester C. Elmendorf (R-2nd Dist.).

In a resolution filed with the clerk of the County Legislature, to be presented at next week's meeting of the Legislature, Elmendorf asks that a study of the possible institution of zoning or regulations prohibiting such a plan be made by the Public Health Committee.

Elmendorf learned recently as did Harry Edinger, Ulster County Health Department director of environmental sanitation, that the Pure Waters Authority, a state agency, has made a survey on behalf of Westchester County with regard to disposal of solid wastes.

A report of the surveys indicates that certain lands in Ulster County (undisclosed) may be under consideration for disposal of solid wastes not originating in Ulster County.

No Zoning or Regulation Bar
Elmendorf says he is concerned because there is no county wide zoning or regulation to control this disposal.

Because the populations generating these wastes are exceedingly large and the quantities involved are proportionate to these populations, The Town of Ulster legislator asks that the public health committee be directed to investigate the reports.

Special

It has been reported that Westchester County, which has been operating a huge landfill for many years, has in turn developed desirable land for building and would like to perhaps abandon further landfill near such sites. It would need, therefore, to look for other areas to transport its solid wastes.

And a Look South

It is also reported that areas to the north of Ulster County are interested in transporting their wastes away from their metropolitan areas and they are looking to the south.

Ulster County, caught in the middle, has enough of its own landfill problems without taking on anyone else's. Edinger suggests that the expense of the individual town landfill operations now being developed locally will range from $12,000 to $18,000 a year. Feeling this is an exorbitant amount for the towns to absorb, he suggests that possibly in the future that two to five landfill operations serve the entire county.

'Poor Second Choice'

He feels that Ulster County, as a dumping ground for Westchester County be "a poor second choice" with poor railroad connections.

Elmendorf's resolution asks that "the public health committee or by direction of the chairman, any other committee having jurisdiction, prepare for and propose to the instance, be in the best interests of the people of Ulster County."

Members of the County Legislature Public Health Committee include Melvin Mones, chairman; Robert H. Kuhlmann, C. Freeman Lasher, Frank Miller, Frederick Pizzuto and William F. Edelmuth.

Pope on Priest Revolt: Church Future Threatened

POPE PAUL VI

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI said today the very existence of the Roman Catholic Church is threatened by the "restless, critical, unruly and demolishing rebellion" of priests and laymen.

The pontiff said the rebellion was against the Church's canon rule, its tradition and its authority.

He also assailed prelates who have quit the Church and said their "scandal" crucified the Church.

The Pope's statements on revolt and defection in the Church came during his weekly general audience devoted to the sufferings of Christ during Holy Week.

Many pilgrims and tourists gathered in Rome for Easter Week ceremonies were among the crowd of 8,000 at the audience in St. Peter's Basilica.

"The Church suffers above all," Pope Paul said, "from the restless, critical, unruly and demolishing rebellion of so many of its children—priests, teachers, laymen, those devoted to the service and the testimony of Christ in the living church—against its intimate and indispensable communion, against its institutional existence, against its canon rule, its tradition, its interior cohesion, against its authority, the unchangeable principle of truth, unity, and charity, against its very requirements of sanctity and sacrifice."

"It suffers from the defection and the scandal of certain priests and religious who today crucify the Church."

The Pope appealed to the faithful to understand the Church and help it. He said the note of optimism sounded by the Vatican Ecumenical Council must not mislead Catholics.

"The Church is going through great sufferings today," the Pope said. "Even after the council."

"Do not deny us your spiritual solidarity and your prayer," he urged. "Do not let fear, discouragement and skepticism get hold of you."

"You find that the Church is not celebrating a holiday," he said referring to the tourists who have come to Rome for Easter. "It is all absorbed in a grave and sorrowful meditation, that of the passion of Christ, of His sufferings, of His cross, of His death."

The Pope said in this time of Easter "the Church, more than in any other moment, is conscious of its sorrows, feels them, bears them, accepts them humbly and tries to sanctify them."

"The Church tries to convert its own humiliations and its own defeats in merits of penitence, purification and redemption," the Pope said.

Large numbers of priests have been leaving the priesthood to marry.

Fireworks in the Council On 'Communication' Issue

By HUGH F. REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

The results of a seemingly routine Common Council meeting Tuesday night burst into fireworks today over an alleged "lack of communication."

Last night, near the end of a meeting that saw some heated statements on a request from Kingston Cablevision Inc. to raise its rates, Alderman Clifford Sinsabaugh (D-10th Ward) asked Clerk Thomas R. Lyle if he had received a reply to a letter he (Lyle) was ordered to send to Assemblyman H. Clark Bell and Senator Jay P. Rolison Jr. requesting a meeting between the two state officials and the Common Council on the proposed Ulster Arterial in the Broadway East Urban Renewal area.

Lyle answered that he had received no reply from either Bell or Rolison. Sinsabaugh then made the same motion again (calling for a letter to Bell and Rolison) and asked that it be sent by registered mail.

No Requests: Legislators

Today, both Rolison and Bell said that they had never received a letter from Lyle asking for the meeting. Both said that they were "ready, willing, eager and able" to meet with the Council on the arterial whenever they are contacted. Bell added that he has been contacted and has met with the Port Ewen Businessmen's Association and the Rondout Advisory Board on the arterial.

Lyle said today that he had "prepared the letter (to Rolison and Bell) in all good faith." "I thought I had mailed it," he said. "I found out today that I hadn't. It was an oversight on my part and I am sorry."

Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan said he would conduct an investigation of the whole incident.

In other major news coming in the aftermath of the Common Council meeting, James G. Connors, executive director of the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency, said the agency met last night and voted to advertise for bids on the proposed parking garage on the site of the old Montgomery Ward building on North Front Street. The bids will be opened on May 9, Connors said.

The parking garage also figured in legislation proposed by Mayor Garraghan to the Council last night calling for the creation of a parking authority to include all city parking facilities. Garraghan's plan is patterned after Poughkeepsie's which was adopted in 1965.

The major topic of controversy at the Common Council meeting was a request by Kingston Cablevision Inc. for an increase in rates from $4.95 per month (for most subscribers) to $6.50.

Alderman Peter Mancuso (D-12th Ward) termed the request (for an increase in rates) "entirely out of order."

"They've got one heck of a nerve to ask for an increase," Mancuso said. Mancuso spoke of "anguish and aggravation, numerous complaints and no satisfaction" with Cablevision.

"They were asked in 1959 when they first applied for a franchise if the $4.95 rate would ever be increased. The answer was an emphatic No," Mancuso said. "Their rate should decrease, with more subscribers."

Might Seek Decrease

Sinsabaugh said his telephone was "tied up for an hour" after last night's story on the rate increase request appeared in The Freeman. Sinsabaugh said if service isn't improved by the company, he would sponsor legislation for a decrease in rates. Sinsabaugh also announced the Council's Urban Renewal Committee, which he chairs, will meet on Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the City clerk's office.

The aldermen had expected to review plans and cost estimates on a proposed new city hall at the Council meeting but that failed to materialize.

Architect Albert E. Miliken was on hand with his plans and estimates but it was understood that the mayor had not yet reviewed them.

Today, Garraghan said he has reviewed the plans with his department heads and has invited the aldermen to view the plans at his office during the next two weeks. The mayor is aiming for an April 15 meeting of the Council to vote on a bond issue to finance the construction of the proposed city hall in Broadway East.

In other action, the Council approved the transfer of $1,500 from the contingency fund to the sewer maintenance fund to cover the cost of drainage work on Delaware Avenue. The Aldermen also approved a contract between the city and the employees of the Board of Public Works who are represented by the Civil Service Employees Association.

The meeting was recessed, subject to the call of the chair, in memory of Mrs. Julia Fish, late wife of Congressman Hamilton Fish, who was killed in an auto accident last week; the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower, who died Friday; and the late Captain Edward (Yank) Albright, a city fireman for more than 40 years, who died Tuesday.

State Has $69 Million Surplus

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — State Comptroller Arthur Levitt reported Tuesday New York State wound up 1968-69 with surprising surplus of $69,956,253.

Levitt made his report on the first day of the state's new fiscal year.

The comptroller said state expenditures for 1968-69 totaled $5.519 billion, an increase of $890 million or 19 per cent over 1967-68.

"Comparison with the summary financial plan submitted to the legislature in January, 1968 shows that, while the aggregate amount expended does not differ materially from the plan, there were major differences in the makeup of the two expenditures: for example, a deficiency of $178 million was made to overcome an underestimate in aid to localities for social services," Levitt said. He noted that in addition to the $5.5 billion of regular general fund expenditures, some $496 million in "first instance" expenditures were made.

Borrowings for state purposes construction continued to increase, reaching a record level of $711 million, the Democrat also reported.

Tax collections for 1968-69 amounted to $5,004 billion, an increase of $832 million or 20 per cent over the preceding year.

The increase in the tax yield due to general economic growth was "substantially underestimated in the Jan. 16, 1968 executive budget, according to the comptroller's report.

Levitt said the true increase in tax collections in 1968-69 was approximately $921 million. Of this, about $360 million was attributed to increases in personal income, business and consumption tax rates.

The comptroller said the balance of $561 million in increased tax revenues was due to economic growth — about $225 million more than originally estimated by the governor.

Dies of Injuries

BATAVIA, N.Y. (AP) — Patrick Dougherty, 49, of nearby Bergen died today in Genesee Memorial Hospital of injuries suffered March 29 in a three-car collision near this city.

Shortly after the stabbing, police received a report that a man was standing at the edge of the bridge, about in the middle of the span, and motorists had stopped to talk with him, apparently trying to persuade him not to jump.

Police went to the scene and handcuffed the man without a struggle. They then learned his identity and held him on the assault charge for arraignment before City Judge Joseph H. Gellert.

Red Charge Turned Back After Big Mortar Attack

SAIGON (UPI)—A Communist company, 130 men strong, slammed a heavy mortar attack into U.S. soldiers camped northwest of Saigon today and then charged with machine guns and bazookas. They were turned back with 49 killed, military spokesmen said.

The battle before dawn 25 miles northwest of Saigon ended with no American casualties and with U.S. warplanes and helicopter gunships hammering the guerrillas' escape routes on an infiltration corridor between Cambodia and the capital. It brought to 266 the number of Reds slain in a series of nationwide battles announced today, one of them a brief skirmish Tuesday 12 miles from downtown Saigon. U.S. paratroopers killed 18 guerrillas and lost three men wounded in that one, front reports said.

From Hanoi, the North Vietnam News Agency broadcast an "assessment" of the now 39-day-old nationwide Communist offensive and said the drive had thwarted U.S. plans to cut down American losses and begin pulling out of the war.

Military spokesmen in Saigon reported the losses of two more U.S. helicopters to Communist ground fire, killing three men and wounding 11 others. Ten waves of B52 Stratofortresses followed up the increased ground action with one of their heaviest raids in a month—10 strikes against Communist camps around Saigon, in the Central Highlands and to the North. U.S. helicopter gunships attacked into the border Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) Tuesday to last out at Communist ground gunners there who opened up on an American spotter plane. It was the first time since the bombing of North Vietnam stopped Nov. 1 that the rocket- and bullet-spraying copters have been sent into the DMZ against what the U.S. command called a "significant" Communist threat.

Speculate On the B52 Cut

WASHINGTON (AP)—Diplomats speculated today that a projected cut in B52 flights against targets in South Vietnam and Laos might be presented by the United States in the Paris peace talks as a de-escalation of the war.

Nixon administration officials say privately, as Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird emphasized publicly Tuesday, that the reason for the planned reduction is not diplomatic but financial. Laird said his department had to cut military costs.

The rate of sorties for the B52's has been running at 1,800 a month. Under the budget proposed for fiscal year 1970 which begins next July 1, the rate would be cut back to 1,600 a month. This could mean simply that fewer planes would be involved in any particular raid. It would not necessarily mean fewer targets would be hit.

Nevertheless, persons familiar with the Paris peace talks said the significant diplomatic aspects of the reduction is that it continues the de-escalation which began a year ago when President Johnson limited the bombing of North Vietnam. This was followed by a lull in offensive operations on the enemy side last summer and fall and by some North Vietnamese troop removals from the South. This finally produced the end of bombing of the North Nov. 1.

Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, U.S. commander in Vietnam, had recommended that the B52 operations be continued at a high level and Laird had said two weeks ago he thought money should be provided for that purpose through June 1970.

As recently as March 19 Laird quoted Abrams as saying he considered the B52 to be one of his "most important weapons." Administration officials insist that the switch in Laird's stand was due entirely to a need to cut costs does not rule out the possibility the cut may be used at some point for negotiating purposes in Paris.

How the North Vietnamese and National Liberation Front negotiators may react to it, however, is another matter. Some authorities here thought they might find evidence in it that the United States is beginning to feel the burden of war costs so heavily that it is compelled to start cutting back whether it wished to do so for diplomatic and strategic reasons or not.

Teachers Rap Idea

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Ford Foundation official's suggestion that "mediocre" teachers be fired and students have a hand in dismissing them was denounced today by teachers organizations.

Dr. Charles Brown, the foundation's program officer and a former teacher, says bad teachers should be fired. He also criticized teachers associations for "protecting mediocrity."

Brown spoke this week before the National Committee for Support of the Public Schools and was interviewed by UPI. His remarks drew strong statements by the nation's two largest teacher groups.

"I think that Mr. Brown spoke like a true school superintendent and a program officer," said David Selden, president of the American Federation of Teachers (AFL-CIO). "The problem is not with the firing procedures. It's with the hiring procedures."

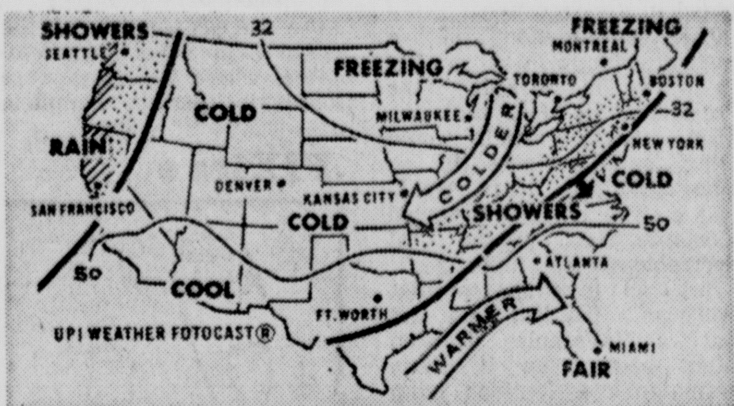

Selden's rival, the National Education Association (NEA), which represents about 1.1 million teachers, pointed out that school boards and school systems hire teachers.

"The teaching profession itself does not hire teachers," an NEA spokesman said. He referred to the NEA platform that recommends "high standards" for teacher certification —five years of college and three years of successful teaching experience.

"Some states don't meet these requirements," he said.

In his speech Brown said the public should "insist that the teaching profession begin to take seriously its pronounced intention to control its own quality. I submit to you that the profession is not doing so now."

'We Know They're All Dead'

BARROTERAN, Mexico (UPI)—Juana Velazquez rocked back and forth on the edge of a bed in her three room cement block house. Two children tugged at her skirts and her 13-year-old son Juan Antonio stood nearby. She did not cry.

Her husband, Genovo Velazquez, 52, has been a miner for 30 years, toiling under the hot flat desert for 300 pesos—$24—a month.

"They're all dead," she moaned, on the verge of tears. "They're all dead down there. We all know that."

Her husband was one of the men trapped below the surface Monday when explosions rumbled through shafts 2 and 3 of the Altos Hornos coal mine, causing cave-ins and generating clouds of poison gas.

Officials feared 156 persons in all were dead. Twenty-one bodies were recovered late Tuesday and 135 men were still lost in the black tunnels.

The waiters peered into the entrance of the shaft as canvas wrapped bodies were handed out from man to man. Eight bodies, blown from the shafts, were recovered shortly after the explosions, heard for 10 miles over the barren Mexican countryside.

Rescuers were forced to stand by for hours Tuesday, testing the air in the mine and waiting until pockets of methane and carbon monoxide gas cleared enough for them to enter.

"There is almost no chance any of the men will be found alive," said Jean Heitz, a French engineer who runs the mines.

One of the first bodies found was that of rescue worker

Pedro Balancas, apparently killed by a pocket of gas as he tried to find the trapped men. Most of the rest were thought to be in a huge working area two miles into the echoing tunnels and almost 800 feet underground.

With more than one in eight offices to claim them.

Crusade for Decency

Maybe it will snowball across the United States and perhaps around the world as Jackie Gleason forecast. It certainly is time something like the teenagers' crusade for decency caught on and swept the country. There are many more teenagers who want decent entertainment than those who prefer obscenity. It remains only for those who want decent entertainment to express their desires emphatically until those who devise our entertainment hear them and respond, as they must if they want box office support.

The first crusade occurred in Miami. It drew 30,000 persons, about evenly divided between adults and teenagers. They filled the Orange Bowl, site of many important football games. Their enthusiasm was infectious and spontaneous. There was nothing organized about it.

It started with Mike Levesque, 17, a senior at Miami Springs High School. Following the arrest of a man who was charged with indecent exposure after a Miami concert March 1, a Catholic youth group discussion inspired Levesque to start the crusade.

Julie James, 18, a member of the teenage Rally for Decency executive committee, said, "We're not against something. We're for something." The teenagers found immediate support, not only among their peers but their adults. Entertainers joined, including Jackie Gleason, Anita Bryant and The Lettermen.

The program was impromptu. Teenage speakers gave three-minute talks on God, parents, patriotism, brotherhood, sexuality ("Sex is definitely being exploited and it is because society has been losing its reverence for one's sexuality," Miss James said.)

Surely, there are numerous teenagers who feel the same way right here and elsewhere throughout the country. For the younger element hardly can be blamed for all the indecency their elders are showing in the various forms of literature and the arts and for the questionable television shows. They just might set a good example that would shame adults into doing some second thinking over where their morals are heading.

A youth revolt, if one wants to call it that, can accomplish more than all the brimstone and fire sermons from the pulpits and the editorials in the newspapers put together. It should receive every encouragement from the elders, but essentially it should be the youngsters' show. It is their problem. A good start has been made in Miami.

Fishing Widows

A fisherman is a fisherman all year 'round, but the lure of piscatorial pleasure is especially strong in the spring. Now that the season opened Tuesday, there will be great activity at the old fishing haunts. There also will be that look of long-suffering tolerance on the fishing widows.

This tolerance will last, by rule of thumb, until about the third weekend that Mom is left behind to ride herd on the young. Then it is likely to develop into put-upon expression that bodes no good for the fisherman on his return.

Fishing wives have our sympathy. Though it has been suggested that wives who can't lick 'em should join 'em, this is not always practicable. The task of preparing to leave the brood with a baby sitter for the weekend may be enough to discourage all but the most ardent fishermen.

It helps to remember the therapeutic value of trying to outwit our finny friends. Getting away from the rat race is good for Old Dad. No boss around, and no telephone; just a man and his fishpole. The fishing widow can hope that he'll come back home with jangled nerves soothed—and maybe a stringer of fish, to boot.

The Peacemaker

David Lawrence Says

Threat to Resume Bombing Would Be Realistic Move

WASHINGTON — Oddly enough, the most potent influence that can be exerted now to bring about peace in Vietnam would be a formal announcement by the United States that it will resume bombing of North Vietnam and all supply routes to the South unless a cease-fire and a mutual withdrawal of military forces is ordered and an international guarantee is given by several nations that they will enforce any agreement reached in Paris.

The reason for emphasis on a renewal of the bombing is that a year has passed since it was halted. The North Vietnamese not only have repaired the damage caused by the bombing, but have improved their methods of defense and are transporting supplies received from the Soviets and Red Chinese in bigger amounts than heretofore.

Dispatches from Saigon reveal that U.S. intelligence sources have made a study of what's happened, and have found that Hanoi, as well as the entire country, is better off than before the bombing. Roads, bridges and communications have been rebuilt or augmented. Routes to the South, no longer under attack, are being used to move troops and supplies faster than ever. Munitions and equipment are being sent South in five times the previous quantities. All this is being transported in and out of Hanoi and the port of Haiphong and over the rail lines from Red China more effectively than prior to the bombing.

The United States stopped the bombing in part on March 31 of last year, and halted all of it on November 1. In that year, more than 12,500 Americans have been killed and 81,000 wounded. The total casualties on the Communist side number 250,000, but this isn't bothering the North Vietnamese very much, for they are gradually getting into a better and better position militarily.

What is the answer then? The Communists are convinced that the Americans are getting ready to quit anyhow in response to an alleged change in public opinion. The enemy interprets some of the speeches by members of Congress and the anti-war demonstrations as indicating that the United States is ready to acknowledge defeat and now is willing to work out what amounts to a surrender.

So the biggest question that confronts President Nixon is how to get out of Vietnam and do it honorably. His only hope lies in obtaining the pledged support of several other nations or perhaps of the U.N. itself.

From a military viewpoint, the prime mistake the United States has made is in failing to prosecute the war with maximum power. Even today a threat to resume bombing could make the North Vietnamese move toward a settlement in Paris.

Members of Congress might well call immediately for more data from our government as to what has occurred since the bombing was halted. The American people would be dismayed to read such a report, and certainly the sentiment in favor of resuming the bombing would increase overnight.

There is much talk here about the so-called "Kissinger Plan," which was published in "Foreign Affairs" before Henry A. Kissinger became President Nixon's special adviser on foreign policy. He suggested three different "forums" for negotiating a settlement in Vietnam.

The first would be between the United States and North Vietnam to discuss military questions such as mutual withdrawal of troops. The second would be meeting between South Vietnam and the "National Liberation Front" — the Communist puppet in South Vietnam — to consider political and administrative structures to be developed, including possibly a coalition government. The third would be an international conference to work out "guarantees and safeguards" for the agreements reached in the other two forums.

These are plausible steps and could be carried out successfully if in the background was unquestionably the knowledge that military power would be promptly applied if the terms were violated.

No plans or peace talks, however, will be of any avail if the United States is to speak from a position of military weakness. Hence, a declaration now of an intention to resume bombing unless a peace program is promptly agreed upon would be a realistic move. North Vietnam, as well as Red China and the Soviet Union, would regard it with more respect than scorn, and they might well show willingness to make a peace agreement that will work.

U.S., South Korea Use Work, Not Dole, to Fight Poverty

By RAY CROMLEY

(NEA Washington Correspondent)
SEOUL, Korea (NEA) — If President Nixon's men are weary-eyed from probing into the shortcomings of our domestic welfare programs, let them come to Korea.

Here they'll see a new twist in attacking poverty. Workers are enthused, the poor happy. The projects have been so successful, in fact, Washington is now using the play in 75 countries — but not at home in the United States.

The aid is American food. It's given in payment to the poor for work. But the secret of success is that it is a particular kind of work — designed to help eliminate poverty.

Back in 1958 and 1959, in return for American aid food, thousands of South Korean farmers began working 15 days a month at building dams and dikes to reclaim thousands of acres of land along South Korea's long western sea coast and bench-terracing marginal lands in the highlands.

There were hundreds of such projects in the years that followed. As each was completed, the South Korean "poor" settled down on the land, producing rice, dry crops, salt.

Usually, not long after, the aid volunteer offices would begin receiving letters which read something like this: "As of next month, when our first crop comes in we will no longer need the gift food. Thank you."

Over the years other poverty-stricken South Koreans have built reservoirs, wells, public comfort stations, farm roads, co-operative pigsties, chicken and rabbit houses, facilities for raising silkworms, irrigation dams and canals, school playgrounds, sewage ditches, flood-prevention embankments.

Large numbers of the men and women who have worked on these projects are now self-supporting and their communities considerably better off for the work they have done.

At present, 30,000 people are working on 266 projects in programs supervised by religious groups working jointly in co-operation with the U.S. aid program and the South Korean government.

Only one member from each family is permitted to work. He may labor under this program only 15 days a month (as it is not intended to develop into a permanent way of life). For these 15 days he receives a month's basic food for himself and his family.

It is not always thus. At the start, the use of American gift food for work was against U.S. law. But the religious volunteer agencies working in the program found the Koreans were unhappy at receiving handouts. They kept asking for something to do. Thus, the work program. At the start, some U.S. officials were "quite upset." But the program succeeded. There was a re-evaluation by the American government men, pushed, in fact, by a clamor from several countries whose experience was the same as Korea's.

The Agency for International Development in 1964 asked Congress to change the law so that aid to needy persons should, where possible, aim at community and other self-help actions designed to lessen the need for assistance.

That set the ball rolling. A five-year conversion program was begun that year. The majority of food-for-aid projects in 75 countries were to come under the new concept by some time in 1969.

As one volunteer in the South Korean program puts it:

"The people show they like the program. They are doing things that are of their own choosing for which they feel the need. Their confidence has been built up for them to try themselves to do things they have wanted to do. Doing the work themselves and being paid for it takes away the feeling of dependency upon outside help and assistance."

It's pretty difficult to ask for more in a war-on-poverty program.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Drew Pearson Says Eisenhower's Last Warning Should Be Remembered Today

WASHINGTON — The words of Dwight D. Eisenhower which will longest be remembered undoubtedly will be his Jan. 17, 1961 warning to the American people to be wary of a military-industrial alliance.

How true his words were can be ascertained from a review of the facts, most of them hitherto unknown, regarding the anti-ballistic missile system and how it was first okayed by the White House.

It first got the green light from President Johnson in 1967 when he had received rosy intelligence reports about an early end of the war in Vietnam and began looking ahead to the postwar problems that would follow dismantling the Vietnam war machine. His advisers warned that the weapons industry couldn't be permitted to slow down too abruptly without endangering our military-industrial base. This was Johnson's frame of mind when the Pentagon began making its strongest push for the ABM system. The generals brought him pictorial evidence that the Russians were going ahead with ABM construction, argued that the United States must keep pace. Congressmen whose constituencies would benefit from ABM contracts added to the pressure.

The anticipation of a postwar slump was a big factor in swaying the President. He felt that the ABM system, which would bring new business to as many as 3,000 firms, would take up the expected economic slack in the vital electronic-missile industry.

He was mindful too that 1968 was a political year and that a favorable decision might also bring in some campaign contributions from grateful contractors. LBJ announced the ABM program in his January 1968 budget message. A few days later, the Tet offensive shattered optimism over an early, triumphant mop-up of the Vietnam fighting.

From the first, the advocates had trouble justifying the ABM system. First, they claimed a "thin line" of anti-ballistic missiles was needed to defend the country against an irrational attack from communist China. They began construction, however, on a site in Massachusetts, a state located in a corner of the USA least threatened by the Red Chinese.

The ABM advocates, hastily backpedaling, next explained that the sites were necessary to protect our cities not only from the Chinese but from the Russians. While acknowledging that a "thin line" could not stop a missile bombardment from the Soviet Union, they suggested it could knock down misfired missiles that might accidentally drop upon a city.

There was an outcry from the cities, however, whose residents seemed more concerned that an ABM missile might backfire than that a Soviet missile would misfire. They feared that the short-range Sprint missiles, in particular, would intercept incoming warheads too close to the cities and contribute to the destruction they were supposed to prevent.

Once again, the advocates abruptly backpedaled and started back around the mulberry bush. Now, they said, the ABM sites were needed not to protect population centers but to defend the unpopulated areas where our Minuteman missile silos are located.

Henry J. Taylor Says Vespucci Discovered Nothing

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

When Amerigo Vespucci gave his name of Amerigo to the new world as America that's what is called getting mighty famous. But thereby hangs a tale.

Overblown reputations supercharged today by image makers who feed us their self-elevating Madison Avenue stuff, always have had a way of lodging themselves in the public mind. And many other things exist merely because they are talked about. This man Amerigo's right to christen America is one of them.

The common idea that he somehow beat Columbus to the discovery has a second twist, because when Columbus himself first beheld the mainland of South America — the only mainland he saw — it seemed to him an insignificant island. In fact, he called it Isla Santa. It was not until Columbus later realized the volume of water the Orinoco River poured into the sea that he began to perceive the truly continental character of his last discovery.

Vespucci, in turn, probably never even got there, and certainly, himself, discovered nothing.

There is no question but that Amerigo Vespucci was of absolutely no consequence in his day, would hardly have known a sextant from a snow-bank and clearly performed throughout his life like an overpoured banana flambeau sending up dramatic but meaningless pillars of fire. He had positive genius, however, for ventilating his self-declared contributions — and that is how he gained immortality.

Vespucci was a Florentine, born there March 9, 1451 — the very picture of a Stendhal hero, with flashing eyes, luminous hair and an authoritative voice that rang with magical nonsense. He was also, unfortunately, a good deal of a crook.

Vespucci's father, Nastagio, was a notary. His uncle, to whom he owed his education, was a Dominican friar. He started as a Medici counting-house clerk, assigned to San Marino, the small 24-square-mile republic in east Italy that remains to this day the oldest independent country in Europe.

The pills you see on the Medici coat-of-arms are happiness pills: tranquilizers. These were a must among the wily condottiere in Renaissance Italy. But like Machiavelli, another publicity hound of the first water, Amerigo never held a big job and was hopelessly outre among his peers in San Marino.

A letter to the Florence home office dated December 30, 1492, shows that by then Vespucci was in Seville, Spain, and until January 14, 1496, he seems to have lived there and in Cadiz.

In 1493 Florentine merchant Giannetto Berardi, established in Seville, had fitted out Columbus's second expedition to the New World. King Ferdinand cancelled Columbus's "private exploring" monopoly in 1497 and had given Berardi a contract for 12 ships for self-profit expeditions on his own. Berardi died and Vespucci wangled a commission to complete them.

Totally unsupported by any contemporary accounts, Vespucci claims to have accompanied a resulting expedition from Cadiz on May 10, 1497. This is the key date.

According to Vespucci's own statements, again unsupported, he "sailed 2,050 leagues" and visited far candor, Missouri Sen. Stuart Symington asked how the Pentagon had planned to protect the Minuteman sites a month earlier when the ABM system was still going to be deployed around cities instead of silos.

Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird hemmed and hawed, then turned the question over to Deputy Secretary David Packard. He also hemmed and hawed. The essence of his answer was that the Pentagon previously had means to protect the silos from a Soviet knock-out blow but that the ABM system would offer better protection.

Symington is the father of the U.S. Air Force and knows his defense onions. He then wanted to know why we should go to the expense of building Spartan and Spring missiles to knock down enemy warheads if the purpose was merely to protect Minuteman intercontinental missiles for later launching. Why not fire the Minutemen as soon as the enemy onslaught is detected, rather than fire intermediary missiles so that the Minutemen could be launched later? There was more hemming and hawing.

But the $64,000 question is whether the ABM system is really needed for defense or as a sop to the military-industrial complex whose appetite for defense dollars is never sated. Already, 22,000 of the nation's largest manufacturers are major defense contractors. Another 100,000 firms contribute through subcontracts to the nation's weaponry. Together, they employ 10 per cent of the nation's work force.

This comprises a lobby which wields tremendous political power, particularly in the congressional districts where the defense plants are located. Even the most economy-minded Congressman are seldom against federal spending in their own constituencies.

They should remember, however, Dwight D. Eisenhower's last words as President:

"This conjunction of an immense military establishment and a large arms industry is new in American experience. (Its) total influence, economic, political, even spiritual, is felt in every city, statehouse, every office in the federal government."

away" the finest harbor in the world." But somehow by his own balled-up latitude and longitude descriptions this would have put him in British Columbia around the sub-Arctic, which is ridiculous, and certainly not South America.

Again following Vespucci's own statements, he left Cadiz again in May, 1499, in a three-ship fleet under skipper Alonso de Ojeda, crossed the Atlantic in 44 days, made another voyage from Lisbon in 1501, and a last one from there on May 10, 1503. But he gives in his writings of these alleged voyages multiple accounts that differ in dates, distances, destinations, latitudes, and details and, actually, in toto.

If Vespucci's own claim about his 1497 trip were trustworthy, he would have reached the mainland of America eight days before John Cabot, namely on June 16 against June 24, 1497.

He subsequently boasted of this voyage in a publication entitled "Mundus Novus" ("The New World"), which appeared in 1504 in Augsburg, Germany, and was widely reprinted.

Professor of cosmography Martin Waldseemüller at Saint-Die University encountered a French translation published in Lorraine in 1505, and through Waldseemüller we have perhaps the first suggestion in a printed book that the newly discovered world should be called "America," because Amerigo discovered it.

An Unforgettable Moment: 1st Glimpse of Suez Canal

(Editor's Note: Stanley King, executive director of the Kingston Jewish Community Center, 96 Maiden Lane, who visited Jerusalem on a fact-finding trip as a member of the United Jewish Appeal's "Operation Israel" has written a series of articles exclusively for The Freeman. The first deals with an eyewitness account of Life Along the Suez Canal.)

By STANLEY KING

When you first approach the Israeli side of the Suez Canal you see nothing.

In fact, when your bus finally slows to a halt after a bumpy, dusty, three-hour ride through the Sinai Desert from El Arish, you don't realize you have arrived at the Canal. There is no water in sight. There are no buildings. All you see are the graceful dunes and scattered burned-out shells of Egyptian military vehicles that line the road most of the way to the Canal.

But then, with a rugged, leather-skinned Israeli sergeant as your guide, you walk about 50 yards from there when you see that those sand dunes were made by bulldozers, not by the wind, and that the Israeli defense forces have burrowed into them an intricate network of shelters, bunkers, trenches and gun emplacements. It is only after you climb to the top of the last in a series of "dunes" that you see, through a barbed-wire fence, the Suez Canal.

The First Time

It was at a point near the Egyptian city of Kantara that I first laid eyes on the Canal. I was a member of the United Jewish Appeal's "Operation Israel", a one-week, fact-finding trip to survey Israel's critical security and social needs. Only two days earlier I was taking off from cold and windy Kennedy Airport in New York. Now I was at the Egyptian edge of the Sinai Desert, squinting at the brown, still water of the Suez Canal under a relentless sun.

If there was any lingering doubt in my mind that Israel was still at war, that she still faced any emergency in which her very survival was at stake, it evaporated with my first glimpse of the Canal. There were those young, smooth-cheeked Israeli soldiers I had heard so much about, literally living underground like moles so that Israel may live. On the Egyptian side was a city, now without most of its civilian, population, but with Egyptian soldiers casually strolling clearly within view.

For security reasons I am barred by the Israeli military censor from describing in detail what I saw along the Canal, but I can say that the fortifications are deep, dark and stifling. The living conditions are severe, but the spirit of the men, and even of the few girl soldiers who have clerical duties is exhilarating. All they have to break the boredom are the radio, periodic visits by an army entertainment troupe and the terrible thunder of a surprise artillery barrage from the Egyptians.

Two Violations

Twice in recent months, the Egyptians have violated the cease-fire agreement by unleashing furious attacks on the Israelis and in isolated agricultural settlements. But the Israeli people, overwhelmed by the skyrocketing costs of maintaining their defenses, no longer can afford to help pay the humanitarian costs of absorbing immigrants and caring for the aged and infirm. These are the social programs which the Jews of the world have traditionally supported. Now the Jews of the world must come to the aid of the beleaguered Israelis by covering the full costs of these programs. That is why the United Jewish Appeal has organized yet another emergency fund campaign with a goal of raising more than the record year of 1967, right after the six-day war. I am convinced that we must support it with all our energy and resources.

Israel bravely sustains these losses of her soldiers, just as she sustains the terrorist atrocities against her civilians in crowded markets and bus ter-

Scotland Yard Now Recruiting Scots

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard, London's famed police headquarters, has nothing to do with Scotland, but it's getting closer to the Highlands all the time.

That doesn't mean that the capital's cops are going to turn in their traditional blue trousers for tartan kilts, but it does mean that more bobbies on the beat may speak with a Scottish burr instead of a Cockney twang.

Scotland Yard is the name for the London Metropolitan Police force. It got the title because in 1890 the police took over a building on a piece of land beside the River Thames where Scottish kings used to stay when they came down to the English capital.

"That's our only connection with Scotland, but now we are trying to get more Scots on the force," said a yard official. "London's population comes from all over Britain, so we try to have police from all over, instead of just Londoners. Tactically, it is better that way." In a high-powered white police car and a small panel truck, the yard has now sent an inspector, a traffic specialist, a fingerprint expert and a woman inspector to northeast Scotland to give pep talks to school children and start a recruiting drive to bring Scottish cadets to London. The yard is also running newspaper ads around Aberdeen and Elgin.

The yard's force totals just over 20,000 men and needs another 5,000 to come up to strength. It recruits all over Britain — 1,200 to 1,600 new members a year—but this is the first direct effort in upper Scotland.

"Some of us estimate that about one-quarter of the force is from Scotland already," said one official. "At least from the accents around here that's what it sounds like. But we want more."

The heavy unemployment in Scotland makes it an ideal recruiting ground. And according to a yard publication, Scots make ideal recruits. It calls them "level-headed, practical, balanced, well-educated and well-built"—bad news for London lawbreakers.

Batter Whipped Sunbeam

Ordinary Bread

Sunbeam has the edge
on freshness

Because Sunbeam is the bread that's Batter Whipped. And Batter Whipping makes all the difference. Just look at the above two slices and you'll see what we mean. Because Batter Whipping is the small-batch mixing process that gives Sunbeam its smooth and even "no holes" texture. And no holes means air takes much longer to get in and dry bread out. That's why Sunbeam's freshness really lasts. Means your Sunbeam sandwiches keep their just-baked flavor; stay soft and fresh. Batter Whipping. That's the edge. And it's a clean-cut case for freshness.

Hospital's Role Discussed In Treating Alcoholics

At a meeting held recently at the Kingston Hospital, the role of the general hospital in admitting and treating a person with acute alcoholic intoxication was discussed.

The initiative for calling the meeting was taken by Charles L. McKendrick, president of the Ulster County Association for Mental Health, in cooperation with Dr. Frederic W. Holcomb Jr., vice-president of the Association and also secretary of the Medical Society of Ulster County. Also present were: Dr. Emeline P. Hayward, director, Ulster County Mental Health Center; Dr. Edward F. Shea, Ulster County Mental Health Board; Dr. Sidney C. Pauker, UCAMH; Anthony Triulzi, administrator, Miss Mary Finger, assistant administrator, Miss Rosemary Pellegrino, R.N., supervisor of nurses, the Kingston Hospital; Sister Mary Charles, administrator, Gerard H. Noc-ton, assistant administrator, Benedictine Hospital; the Rev. Edwin C. Coon, Kingston Area Council of Churches; the Rev.

SISTER MARY CHARLES

ANTHONY TRIULZI

David L. Bronson, Mrs. Elizabeth C. Hurd, and Mrs. Diana M. Geiger, UCAMH.

Following a very helpful exchange of information and consideration of problems, there was general agreement that since alcoholic intoxication is cation can be admitted to this room when available.

Sister Mary Charles stated that the Benedictine Hospital has two rooms that have been specially designed for detention and that these are available for persons in an acute alcoholic condition. There is a possibility that other rooms can be provided if the need is great. These facilities are available to all physicians who wish to admit a patient and would be available in the event that a physician could not secure detention facilities at the Kingston Hospital.

It was also stated that for a general hospital of the size under consideration, it was desirable that there should be a minimum of two rooms available for the treatment of acute alcoholic intoxication — one for male and one for female, with possible occupancy for two in each.

Reference was made to the problem of the extreme shortage of hospital beds due to the high percentage of beds occupied by chronic patients for whom there are not extended care facilities in Ulster County.

Mao's Final Attempt to Remake Red China

TOKYO (AP) — Red China's ninth Communist party congress, which opened in Peking Tuesday, is Mao Tse-tung's last great effort to remake his nation.

In the early days of his 20-year-old regime, when he held the reins of both the party and the government, he sought to impose his will through both. Rebellions in the army and at the top of the Communist hierarchy blasted his dreams.

In 1966, placing his faith in a great mass movement dubbed the "Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution," Mao tried to achieve mastery through revolutionary committees modeled on the Paris Communes in 1871.

The breakdown of party and government which accompanied his epic purge thrust the often unreliable army into a position of dangerous leadership. Mao countered by decreeing, fruitlessly, that the workers and peasants should take over the revolution.

Now, finally, he has had to fall back on the party he spurned and shattered. He is trying to rebuild it on Maoist lines from the shambles it had become.

The task of the party congress is to revise the constitution to include Mao's political philosophy, designate Defense Minister

6 Upstaters Killed in Viet

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Six more upstate New York servicemen have been placed on the Defense Department list of those killed in action in Vietnam.

On the list released Tuesday by the Pentagon were Army

Pfc. Frank J. G. Ellis Jr., a son of Mrs. Dorothy L. Ellis of Syracuse, Marine Sgt. Dennis M. Orfino, a son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Orfino of Syracuse, Marine Pfc. Larry F. Christie, husband of Mrs. Larry E.

Lin Piao his successor and name a new central committee for the party.

Mao, now 75 and nearing the end of his turbulent revolutionary life, is taking no chances on failure this time. The 1,512 delegates have been handpicked rather than elected. As the opening-day communique put it, they were chosen "through full democratic consultation by party organizations at various levels and after extensively seeking the opinion of the broad masses."

Christie of Waddington, and Marine Pfc. Larry A. Miles, a son of Mrs. Lois J. Miles of Buffalo.

Placed on the dead-from-hostile-causes list from the missing list, all from the Army, were Sgt. Allen R. Miller, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Miller of Edmeston, and Spec. 4 Lynn C. Whitford, husband of Karen G. Whitford of Ticonderoga.

Army St. 1C Eugene R. Sheridan, husband of Elizabeth A. Sheridan of Petersburg, was listed as having died from non-hostile causes.

The criterion for membership was simple: loyalty to Mao.

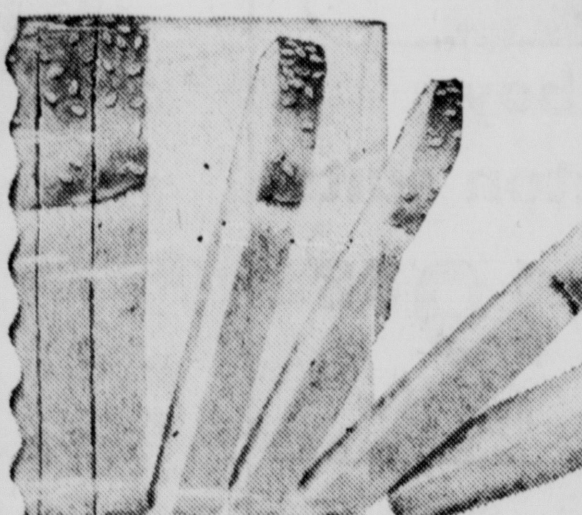

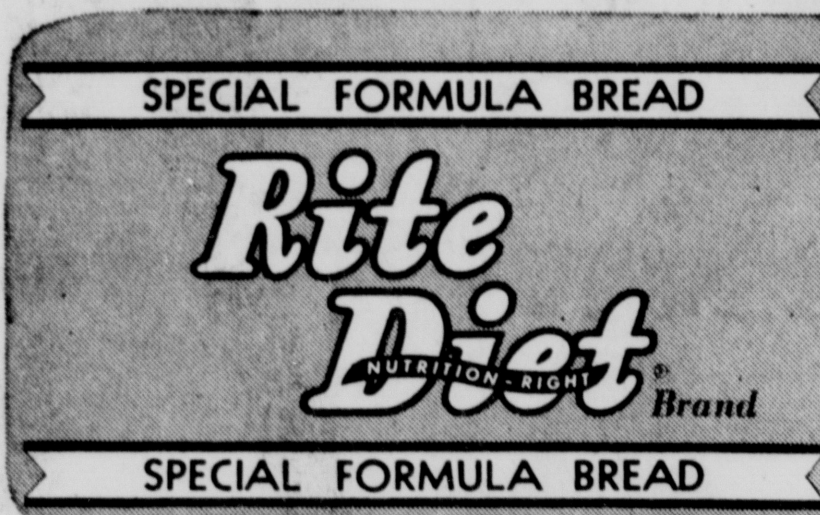

Mao's fight to give the new Central Committee control of the army will be bolstered by a record number of industrial workers and peasants among the delegates to the congress.

The new Central Committee later will name its own ruling Politburo and standing committee, the select inner groups responsible for the day-to-day operation of the party, the army, and the government.

The next formality will be a national people's congress to go through the motions of naming a new president and a new government.

It is possible that a few of Mao's former opponents may be retained on the Central Committee as "teachers by negative example." But they are unlikely to include any of the leaders of the anti-Mao group which former President Liu Shao-chi led.

Marist College Brothers Offer Recreational Aid

GARDINER A delegation of brothers from Marist College have offered their services to the Town of Gardiner Recreation program. Appearing at Tuesday night's meeting of the town board, the brothers offered their services in the field of arts and crafts, swimming and tutoring. They will confer with the recreation chairman Dr. Virgil DeWitt to work out a summer program.

The board agreed to also contact the Children's Aid Society of New York City to find out if it would be agreeable again for the town to use the society's Wallkill camp grounds and pool this summer.

Supervisor George Majestic suggested to the board that it consider investing town money in treasury bills next year instead of in local banks on time deposits, majestic made the proposal last month and it was rejected. Last night he explained that the time deposits net a little more than five percent interest whereas the treasury bills would bring in 6.42 percent, payable within the year.

Majestic also suggested that when variances to ordinances are sought that they not be advertised when there is no apparent opposition.

Majestic said that both the planning board and the town board were in agreement that

Penn Central Criticized for Broken Promises

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Public Service Commission has accused the Penn Central Railroad of a "string of broken promises" since the railroad set up the so-called Empire Service two years ago.

Attorneys for the PSC told railroad executives Tuesday at a public hearing that the Penn Central has failed to live up to promises of "clean, fast, comfortable service."

The criticisms came when Edward L. Claypole, railroad vice-president of transportation, testified in the hearing that the railroad has formed an "Empire Service Group" in the last few days to improve service in the state.

Some PSC lawyers complained that Claypole was merely repeating promises given two years ago when the railroad established the Empire Service. Since then, "it's been a string of broken promises," they said, in citing cases of equipment breakdowns, filthy cars, and late-running passenger trains.

The PSC is seeking a 40,000 penalty from the railroad for the inadequate service on the railroad passenger trains between New York City and Buffalo.

Claypole said the railroad also has ordered new telephone equipment to aid in the upstate railroad answering service. He said he knew about the long-standing complaints about delays in obtaining information, but the equipment was ordered only last week.

Claypole and a number of other Penn Central executives flew to Albany from Philadelphia to testify in the hearing. He was on the witness stand most of the day and answered questions about scheduling, equipment and facilities.

Claypole said the train schedule calls for a trip of two hours and 40 minutes between New York City and Albany. The railroad, he said, has no immediate plans to make a faster trip.

A lawyer for a railroad retorted that bus companies "advertise service to New York City in two hours and 40 minutes and they make it." Buses have a much better record in keeping schedules in this regard than Penn Central trains, he said.

Yorty to Have Election Runoff With Los Angeles Councilman

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Los Angeles City Councilman Thomas Bradley, a Negro who apparently drew heavy support from white voters, has forced incumbent Samuel W. Yorty into a runoff election for mayor. Barry Goldwater Jr., son of the Republican senator from Arizona, launched his own political career in nearby San Fernando Valley in Tuesday's elections by easily winning the GOP nomination for a seat in Congress. Goldwater, a stockbroker, will face Democrat John Van De Kamp, a former Justice Department lawyer, in a runoff April 29 for the seat vacated by Ed Reinecke, who became California lieutenant governor.

With about 65 per cent of the precincts counted, Goldwater had more than twice as many votes as his Democratic opponent in the 15-man race. Democrats claimed victory in the only other congressional contest Tuesday. Wisconsin State Assemblyman David R. Obey defeated Republican State Sen. Walter John Chilsen in the battle for the seat left by Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird. Democratic National Chairman Fred R. Harris cheered the victory in what he called "the very region of the country which elected Richard Nixon president last November." He said it's the first time a Democrat has won the seat in the 7th District.

Virtually complete returns gave the Democrat about a 2,000-vote edge. The Los Angeles City election saw Bradley, a 51-year-old attorney and former police lieutenant, open up a wide early lead in the 14-man race. In a city with an estimated 15 per cent Negro population, he had almost 42 per cent of the vote with half the precincts in. Yorty had 26 per cent and the other candidates were far behind. Bradley had the backing of Democratic party leaders in the nonpartisan election, and Yorty was in his familiar role as a party maverick.

In other elections Tuesday: —St. Louis Mayor A. J. Cervantes, a Democrat, was re-elected handily, but a Republican took the first city-wide election in 18 years as Joseph L. Daracco won the presidency of the Board of Aldermen. —Dallas voters returned Mayor Erik Jonsson to office and his

Denies Request By Dairymen For More Help

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin turned down a request Tuesday by dairymen for a 7 per cent boost in government price supports for manufacturing - grade milk. At the same time, Hardin ordered minor increases in federal purchase prices for butter and cheese in a move designed to assure that farmers' milk prices will be kept at the support level. But, he said no change was being made "at this time" in the basic $4.28 per hundred weight support price for manufacturing - grade milk in the marketing year which has begun. Dairy spokesmen pointed out that when former Secretary Orville A. Freeman first adopted the $4.28 rate last December, it amounted to 90 per cent of the "fair earning power" parity price for milk. But now, because farm costs have been rising, the support equals only 84 per cent of parity, they said.

Farmers had pressed Hardin to boost the support for the 1969-70 year back to the legal ceiling of 90 per cent of parity—a 7 per cent increase to $4.58 a hundredweight. While turning down the boost, Hardin noted that milk production has been declining. He promised to keep production and market developments "under continuing review"—an indication the support might be raised later if conditions warranted.

In an allied move, Hardin set the price support for butterfat in farm-separated cream at 68 cents a pound for the 1969-70 season, up two cents from last season. To carry out the $4.28 support for manufacturing milk, Hardin said government purchase prices for butter will be raised by 0.75 cents-a-pound and cheese purchase prices will go up one cent per pound. No change will be made in purchase prices for non-fat dried milk.

During the 1968-69 year which ended Monday, the Agriculture Department bought the equivalent of 4.7 billion pounds of milk under its dairy support program, about 4.2 per cent of total farm marketing, at a net cost of about $300 million, Hardin said.

State Criminal Anarchy Law Goes Before Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The constitutionality of New York's 76-year-old criminal anarchy law was contested before the U. S. Supreme Court Tuesday, as 15 black militants sought acquittal of charges they advocated the overthrow of government through sabotage and assassination. The defense attorney, Eleanor Jackson Piel, told the high court "this is a double-barreled attack" on the anarchy statute and the state's grand jury system.

In a companion case, the court was asked to uphold a lower federal court ruling that struck down California's 50-year-old criminal syndicalism law. California asked the high court to reexamine the ruling which barred the state from prosecuting John W. Harris Jr., 22. Harris was indicted for distributing "Progressive Labor Party" literature outside the 1966 inquest into the death of Leonard Deadwyler, a Negro shot by a policeman.

She charged that the grand jury system was stacked against Negroes because its make-up is "white, middle class." Another defense lawyer, Victor Rabinowitz, said the Supreme Court "could not shut its eyes to the fact that the anarchy statute in New York State is being used to prosecute the conduct of black people expressing views which are unpopular." He asked the court to throw out the law.

Prosecution against the 15 was postponed pending the appeal to the high court. Two of the 15 were convicted in New York City in June on another charge. Suspended school administrator Herman Ferguson, 46, and militant Arthur Harris, 22, were found guilty of conspiring to slay two civil rights leaders — Roy Wilkins and Whitney Young Jr. A Negro police detective, who infiltrated and became vice president of the Revolutionary Action Movement — RAM, testified against them.

During the 1968-69 year which ended Monday, the Agriculture Department bought the equivalent of 4.7 billion pounds of milk under its dairy support program, about 4.2 per cent of total farm marketing, at a net cost of about $300 million, Hardin said.

Wilson Leaves For London

LONDON (AP) — British Prime Minister Harold Wilson flew home from Africa today without seeing Biafran leader Odumegwu Ojukwu and with no agreement from the Nigerian government to stop bombing Biafran towns. Meanwhile, the Nigerians claimed a new offensive had brought their army within 16 miles of Umuahia, Ojukwu's headquarters. As he was leaving Ethiopia after a 36-hour visit, Wilson told Prime Minister Tsehafe Habte Wold he was disappointed Ojukwu had not agreed to see him. One Western diplomat in Addis Ababa speculated that the new Nigerian offensive may have been timed to keep Ojukwu busy so he could not meet with Wilson. The head of the Nigerian government, Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon, rejected Wilson's overtures for an end to the bombing of Biafra. Gowon said the civilian bombing casualties which have caused much concern in Britain and America had been "staged-managed" by the Biafrans. He said the attacks disrupted flights bringing arms to the rebels and disorganized their ground forces. In Ethiopia, Wilson met with Emperor Haile Selassie, head of the Organization of African Unity, and OAU Secretary Diallo Telli to discuss his trip to Nigeria and explain Britain's position on the civil war.

Aids Ex-Prisoners

Former Confidence Man Director of HELP

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI)—If the cops see Bob Glazier huddling with a slow walker or a door kicker, they know it isn't a crime that's being plotted—as might once have been the case.

Glazier is a former confidence man who—when he managed to stay out of jail—sold rubes the Brooklyn Bridge with the Gowanus Canal as a bonus. He is now the director of HELP, a private non-profit organization that "Helps Ex-prisoners Live Positively."

In his second floor offices across from the old New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad station, Glazier and his staff interview and counsel ex-prisoners. He frowns on the term, "ex-con."

He may be talking to an applicant who once followed postmen around their routes "a slow walker" so he could rifle mail boxes of checks, or a "door kicker," a burglar who tests doors by kicking them.

Want to Go Straight
They all have one thing in common. Each has served his term and each wants to get a job and go straight. "That's what we're here for, to help," Glazier says, and the ex-prisoners know when they go up against Glazier, the cards are on the table.

Glazier has spent 22 years of his life in various penal institutions. "Nobody's kidding anybody," he says.

And that's the key to HELP's success. Incarceration is a bitter experience and most former prisoners regard the representatives of various social agencies as genteel "screws," the term they apply to their former guards. Glazier says that the majority of former prisoners are lacking in basic educational or vocational skills and when a man is released from prison, very few worry about how he can re-establish himself.

After years of rigid routine, he must suddenly fend for himself. He also walks out of prison a pauper. None of these situations are conducive to the confidence needed in finding a job," Glazier says.

But the helping hand is extended in Glazier's stark the Hartford area with no results. I will even go as far as to say that a number of them were headed by religious people.

"Some were polite, coldly so, but they simply had no openings. Others just came right out and told me that once a criminal, always a criminal."

Contacts Board
"I was more than discouraged and just didn't know how I could write my husband the bad news, so I proceeded to contact the Board of Parole to ask if my husband could be accepted without a job and find one when he came home.

"I was told he had to have a job, and not only did he have to have a job, but he had to be to work and did what he and his woman could ask for."

That is the point Glazier makes in his talks with the woman said, "has been home five months and is still seeking a new life. They must be employed on the same job, he is write their own ticket. 'It's up to them,'" he says.

Everything But Numbers In Brazilian Phonebooks

PORTO ALEGRE, Brazil (AP) — Telephone directories are among Brazil's best reference books, but don't rely on them if you are looking for somebody's telephone number.

The value of the books is more in the information crammed before and after the listings, than in the listings themselves.

The local directory in this city of more than one million inhabitants is packed with valuable statistics about the local economy, as well as an informative essay on the city's history and tourist attractions. There is also a separate essay on the history of Rio Grande do Sul State and on the attractions of nearby communities.

Another section contains tax and labor laws for quick reference, a compound interest table and a page outlining young men's obligations for military service. There is even a perpetual calendar and a full text of Brazil's 1967 Constitution.

But if you want to find a telephone number, don't bother looking it up in the directory. It probably isn't listed in the name of the person who has the phone.

Here, as in every other Brazilian city, telephones are sold like any other commodity—only at higher prices. But because such transactions are not strictly legal, the phones remain listed in the name of the original owner.

This trade in telephones stems from the failure of telephone systems to expand over the last few decades, leading to a brisk black market in which a residential phone can fetch almost $1,000.

Despite their shady nature, such transactions are openly advertised, with dozens of offers to buy or sell telephones appearing daily in the classified section of newspapers of major Brazilian cities.

The transaction itself is simple enough. The seller tells the telephone company he has moved, and gives the buyer's address as his new location, asking that his phone be moved there. In principle the seller could sell his phone to more than one person, and the buyer would have little recourse. But in practice these deals rarely go sour, and thousands of persons in Rio de Janeiro, Sao Paulo and other cities live with phones registered in someone else's name. Many of the phones have already moved several times from their original location.

As a result it's not uncommon for people to say, "Call me up, the phone is in the name of so-and-so."

Resorts Hire Special Transit To Help Guests

MAHWAH, N.J. (AP) — Catskill resort operators hired special transportation so Passover holiday guests could get to the area's hotels today as the strike of drivers and mechanics against the Short Line bus system continued.

A spokesman at Short Line headquarters here said no negotiations are scheduled with Local 225, Transport Workers Union of America, AFL-CIO, which represents 170 drivers and 100 maintenance men.

The Short Line carries about 10,000 daily riders on runs from northern New Jersey to New York City, Binghamton, N. Y., and Carbondale and Scranton, Pa. It also is a primary mode of travel for Catskill vacationers.

The Catskill Resorts Association, representing 58 hotels, met in Monticello, N.Y., Tuesday and arranged to charter buses from the Mohawk Bus Lines to transport New York City guests up for the Passover holidays. Private car service and added Erie-Lackawanna Railroad service were also planned.

Seymour Kreiger, the association's secretary, said at least 1,000 guests and employees in New York City had been unable to reach the Sullivan and Ulster County resorts.

The strike began Sunday when workers rejected a $500,000 company contract proposal.

Not Original Author

Robert Burns said that he took down the words for the well-known song, "Auld Lang Syne," as he heard an old man sing them. But Burns is usually given credit for writing them.

Rockefeller to LWV

--- Wise Men Strive for Your Support

NEW YORK (UPI)—New for your support." York's Governor Nelson Rockefeller once told a women's group: "Grown men shudder at your opposition and wise men strive League women keep a round-the-clock watch on lawmaking Mrs. Lucy B. Benson, president of the League of Women Voters—50 this year. In 2,000 municipalities, League women keep a round-

72 Hours a Week
Women worked 72 hours a week then, without any protection. School attendance often was not compulsory. Illiteracy was common. And nobody cared much about child labor. The League did something about these abuses.

By 1922, according to Mrs. Benson, of Amherst, Mass., the League was able to push passage of 60 measures improving the status of women in 28 states.

The League then applied womanpower behind passage of the Food and Drug Act. "Before long people began to rely on what was listed on the side of cans bought at the grocery store," Mrs. Benson said.

The League flunked with efforts to win ratification of the League of Nations. One isolationist of the time wrote:

"Women voters have such a fear or horror of war they would willingly sacrifice everything we Americans hold dear rather than make sacrifices incident to justifiable war."

The ladies then dropped the League of Nations. "It was just too hot to handle," Mrs. Benson said.

The League, an activist organization, works to let people know how and why government works. Mrs. Benson said it conducts "second suffrage movements" in dozens of Negro neighborhoods. Other activities —In a day it sent 1,000 letters to the U.S. State Department recommending what to do about the United Nations.

—In one Missouri town, it made 8,000 phone calls in a day just to get the community a new sewer.

Facts and Figures

Last November, League members approached motorists in 375 cities with facts and figures on candidates and issues.

Mrs. Benson said the League long ago dropped its non-partisan posture.

"Its perfume-filled rooms have exerted important influence on the United States political scene," Mrs. Benson said.

The League, for example, supported passage of the Water Resources Act. It helped reform the penal system in North Carolina and the handling of juvenile offenders in Illinois courts.

To join a woman need only be 21 and pay dues from $5 to $10 a year.

"It's where the action is for women who want to be active," Mrs. Benson said.

So pointed was League action in one community, a disgruntled candidate who no doubt failed to scribed the group as—"The Plague of Women Voters."

Small Group Makes Things Happen in Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Politics never could be regarded as one of the exact sciences, but it does share with physics the basic natural law that nothing moves unless something pushes it.

The U.S. Senate, for example, is a body naturally at rest, and it is famous for doing nothing unless someone gives it a shove. In the past, men like Henry Clay, Thaddeus Stevens, Robert Taft and Lyndon B. Johnson became national figures as movers and shakers of the Senate.

Today, no one man either leads or drives the Senate. Rather, a small group of Democrats and Republicans, some known to every television viewer and some practically anonymous, hold and use the power to make things happen in the Senate.

Favorite Story

John F. Kennedy had a favorite story about one of the Senate's most effective, but least apparent, power brokers: "He comes into the Senate late in the afternoon . . . when he rises most of the Senate has left. He sends his messages up to the desk and everyone says 'What's in it?' Then he says 'It's nothing important' and the Grand Coulee Dam is built."

The late President, a man who appreciated (and never had) power in the Senate, was talking about Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, a rotund Washington Democrat who heads the Senate Commerce Committee and seldom gets headlines.

But whenever veteran Senate aides and reporters get talking about the men who really swing the namers of power in the Senate, Magnuson makes the list. He doesn't make a lot of noise, but he makes things happen.

There is no "official" list of the 10 most powerful senators. But there is a working consensus among those who watch the Senate closely.

Senators Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Magnuson are most frequently mentioned. Sens. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., Russell B. Long, D-La., John J. Williams, R-Del., John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and John B. Stennis, D-Miss., also make many lists.

This is not a list, in order, of the 10 senators who can do the best job of getting a bill passed, a policy changed or a friend appointed to a federal job. Senate power is too abstract to be precisely defined, but it exists and these men have it because the people who work with and for them say they do.

It is possible, however, to chart a rough order of precedence among the Senate powers. Foremost would be Dirksen, whose rumpled hair and organ pitched voice have made him one of the most widely known men in American government, and Russell, the soft-spoken senior southerner who has always preferred to work in the background, but nevertheless gets more done than any three or four other senators whose faces appear frequently in the papers and on television.

After these two powers among the powerful, the ranking would be Mansfield, Magnuson and Kennedy, not necessarily in that order.

None of these men, however, has anything like the power Lyndon B. Johnson held as Senate Democratic leader in the 1950's. When Johnson left the Senate, his authority became so diffused that it is hard to imagine any of the current power brokers being able to assemble it again.

All of today's contenders have a "vehicle" for power—either a party leadership post, as in the case of Dirksen and Mansfield, or committee chairmanships like Russell and Magnuson.

The Exception

The exception is Edward Kennedy, who still is more an emerging power than an established one. His power derives only slightly from the post of assistant to Mansfield and much more from the national political constituency which he inherited from his brothers.

The need for such a "vehicle" is demonstrated in the case of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, who has all the other prerequisites for power. He has respect, is considered hard working and diligent, and is an able floor manager for legislation.

But Muskie, the 1968 Democratic vice-presidential candidate, has declined to seek a leadership post and his seniority leaves him well down the list on Senate committees.

There are others who have power only because they are chairmen. Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., certainly exercises vast power as chairman of the Finance Committee, but there is a feeling that if the Republicans ever take control of the Senate, Long would lose most of his aura of power.

There are some Senate observers who consider Williams, the ranking Republican on the Finance Committee, more powerful than Long.

There may be a few, such as Cooper, who have no base but whose judgment is so highly valued that they command power. Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., may be another.

Although Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., was not mentioned, he parlayed his chairmanship of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee into an instrument of considerable power last year which should have given him some ranking. However, Fulbright's influence seems to be much stronger outside the Senate than among his colleagues.

Negative Power

There is also the exercise of negative power. Eastland is the master of this art.

When Thurgood Marshall was first appointed to a federal judgeship, Eastland delayed confirmation for about a year simply by refusing to schedule a hearing by his Judiciary Committee. In the last decade, operating with a majority of like-minded senators, Eastland has managed to bottle up countless civil rights bills by simply ignoring them.

But with the election of more and more Democratic liberals, "Big Jim" lost absolute control of his committee and now, at best, has a stand-off.

No man has more power bases in the Senate than 71-year-old Richard Brevard Russell, the soft-spoken courtly Georgian.

Russell is the dean of the Senate; the chairman of the all-powerful Appropriations Committee; the Senate's military expert; the leader of the southern bloc; and, by far, the best parliamentary tactician in the body.

But much of Russell's power derives from what one Senate aide called "great personal respect" and such stature that he can change votes simply by announcing his personal position.

Unlike Russell, who prefers to exert power in a quiet and restrained fashion far from the limelight, Dirksen revels in publicity.

Power from Post

The power of the 73-year-old Illinois Republican, who just won re-election, stems, of course, from his post as Republican leader and to a secondary degree from high rank on the Judiciary and Finance committees.

To a great extent Dirksen's is an exposed, naked sort of power displayed in emotional appeals for support on the floor; in calling together factions to frame a bill in his office, and for man-to-man persuasion for votes.

His power was never more apparent than in the 1964 and 1965, and to a lesser extent, the 1968 civil rights bills when he alone could provide the votes to end the traditional southern filibuster which made passage impossible.

There are some who feel that the powers of Russell and Dirksen have waned.

The Georgian has been plagued in recent years by emphysema, although he appears better now than for some time. Also, his southern bloc is no longer solid, coming together only on civil rights issues.

Sirhan: Subdued and Apologetic After Outburst in Courtroom

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Subdued and apologetic after a new display of ill temper, Sirhan Bishara Sirhan listened abstractedly to testimony that he did indeed have the mental capacity to plot Robert F. Kennedy's murder.

The young Jordanian cursed and had to be led from the courtroom Tuesday when a witness, psychiatrist Seymour Pollack, suggested he was a liar. But during discussion of the point most crucial to his case—whether he could maturely and meaningfully plot the murder—Sirhan swiveled in his chair and let his gaze roam the room idly. Pollack directly contradicted previous psychiatric testimony when he said, "I believe Sirhan went to the Ambassador Hotel with the conscious intent of killing Sen. Kennedy."

Defense psychiatrists had said Sirhan killed Kennedy in a trance.

Defender of Cause

"It is my opinion Sirhan killed Kennedy because he hated him for what he stood for," said Pollack. "He saw himself as the defender of the Arab cause."

Q. You didn't find any suggestion of a break with reality?

A. Not at any time. Sirhan 25, highly partisan to the Arab cause in the Middle East turmoil, because "convinced that Sen. Kennedy was an opportunist, exploiting the political scene by becoming subservient to American Jews in order to get their votes," Pollack said. "He focused on Kennedy as a leader to be destroyed."

Marine Fails In Attempt To Smuggle Dope

NEWARK, N.Y. (AP) — Plans by a former Marine to smuggle marijuana into the country through the mails went awry Tuesday night when he was arrested by State police.

State Police, working with U. S. Postal Investigators, said Dale Lohman, 22, recently returned from Vietnam, tried to mail himself "600 king-size marijuana cigarettes" from that country.

Lohman was charged with criminal possession of dangerous drugs, mailing injurious material, illegal possession of a concealed firearm and illegal possession of fireworks.

The latter two charges were made after police searched Lohman's room following his arrest, discovered a .32 cal. pistol and a quantity of firecrackers. Lohman was arraigned on the charges at Wayne County Court and was held overnight in Wayne County Jail in lieu of $5,000 bond for another court appearance today.

Legal Dilemma Faces Tennessee On Problem of Ray's Jury Trial

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Two prison cell letters from James Earl Ray and the death of the judge who received them have placed the state of Tennessee in an apparent legal dilemma.

The problem is whether the circumstances may force authorities to give the admitted killer of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., the trial by jury he has been quoted as saying he wants.

Faced by seemingly conflicting opinions from higher judicial authority, four judges of the Shelby County Criminal Court huddled with prosecution officials Tuesday. None of those at the meeting would say what, if any, conclusion was reached.

Judge W. Preston Battle, who accepted Ray's guilty plea in Criminal Court March 10 and sentenced him to 99 years, disclosed nine days later that he had received a letter from Ray, saying he intended to "file for a postconviction hearing."

Battle, 60, died of a heart attack Monday in his chambers.

Associates who searched his official effects said Tuesday they found a second letter which Ray asked the judge to treat "as a legal notice of an intent to ask for a reversal of the 99 year sentence."

Existence of the second letter written from the state penitentiary in Nashville, had not been made public by the judge's wording raised the question whether it was the valid equivalent of a motion for a new trial, or perhaps a writ of habeas corpus.

High court judges differed on the implications of the letters.

State Criminal Appeals Court Judge Charles Galbreath says a motion for a new trial filed within the 30-day review period is automatically granted when the judge who presided over the case dies before acting on it.

But Chief Justice Hamilton Burnett of the Tennessee Supreme Court said Ray's letters' even if construed as motions, do not automatically guarantee a new trial.

"The new trial plea is one of the rights Ray waived in pleading guilty, along with his right of appeal to other state courts," said Burnett.

The justice said any petition filed by Ray would have to be ruled upon as a habeas corpus writ, in which a prisoner contends his rights were violated.

Fever Could Help Cure Many Cancers

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A new nurse to help cure many desperate human cancers could be a fever.

A feverish heat is one of nature's ways of throwing off germ and virus infections.

So scientists now are planning to heat up the whole human body with artificial fevers in hopes of killing cancers. They also plan to use anticancer drugs simultaneously for a double punch.

Fever as a helpful nurse is not a new idea. Some 100 years ago, a German doctor noticed that a man with cancer of the jaw recovered after an infection causing high fever.

Much more recent research points to heat as a weapon against cancer. Dr. Charles Heidelberger of the University of Wisconsin said today in a report to an American Cancer Society seminar for science writers.

Cooperative research at Wisconsin and the University of Rome, Italy, showed that heating the blood supply to the arms and legs to about 107 degrees Fahrenheit produced complete disappearance of cancers in eight of 22 patients. They have been well now for at least two years, two of them for more than four years. Normal body temperature is 98.6.

Hints from Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

When wallpaper in my home gets a torn or stained place, this is the way I patch it:

Using a metal straight-edge or metal-edged ruler and a razor blade, I cut a square or rectangle around the spot about two inches larger than the area that needs repairing.

Then with a hot water and detergent solution, I dampen the cut-out patch until it comes off the wall all in one piece.

Next, I pull out that extra roll of matching wallpaper that I save every time we paper a room. And very carefully cut an exact duplicate square, being sure to match the pattern.

After the wall is dry, I paste the new patch into the hole which I have cut out and the edges fit "like a glove."

The patch may be a shade different from the rest of the wallpaper because of sun fading or carbon, but it sure looks a lot better than a glaring torn hole.

A Reader

Dear Heloise:

Baking bread is a good way to relieve pressure and tension. I do it whenever I am angry, depressed, or otherwise moody. Then, as I knead it, I punch it and sock it and really get that tension out of my system.

Heloise, it makes me feel so-o much better. Aslo makes my family happy because I don't take it out on them!

Jeannie

Dear Heloise:

When my husband wants to remove tree stumps, he drills several holes in the stump and pours charcoal lighter fluid in the holes. Then he places barbecue charcoal on the stump and lights it. As it burns down he adds more of the charcoal.

Gradually the stumps disappear without a lot of energy, work or expense on our part.

It's a Marshmallow Bunny Cake for the Kiddies at Easter

FIRST STEP in making Easter Bunny Cake: Slice oblong cake lengthwise on diagonal in two places. Make the smaller upper cut, for large ears, about one inch from top left corner tapering to the middle of the cake. Start the second cut about one inch from bottom left and extend it to middle of right edge of cake. Trim ears to equal size.

SECOND STEP: Move ears forward to front and arrange in upright position. Slide large central part of cake forward to form head and body. If necessary, trim edges of cake so bunny will stand straight. Place in upright position on cake plate. Fasten ears and body together with wooden picks or skewers. Spread with No-Cook Marshmallow Frosting.

AN EASTER BUNNY CAKE made with a cake baked in a loaf pan; then cut to form the bunny. The bunny is delicious, of course, but you may want to make a supply of cupcakes in case the children want to keep the precious bunny around for awhile.

PRETTY AS A PICTURE — Easter ham shining with an easy corn syrup glaze. The Easter Bonnet Cake is made with a cake mix plus a simple no-cook fluffy white frosting.

Easter, a Day of Tradition

When family and friends gather for traditional ham 'n eggs with fresh from the oven bread on Easter at noon, surprise everyone with a specially decorated cake. It's ever so easy to do with standard mixes of your choice and this fluffy frosting recipe. Make the ham a spectacular success with one of the glazes shown here a rich, glossy mustard glaze, or an Orange or a Pineapple glaze.

Easter Baked Ham

- 1 ready-to-eat ham (about 13 pounds)
- 1 cup dark corn syrup
- 2 teaspoons dry mustard

Trim ham, then place, fat side up, on rack in roasting pan. Heat in 325 degree F. (slow) oven about one hour and 15 minutes. Remove ham from oven; score making cuts about 1/4-inch deep, about 1-inch apart across fat surface of ham. Mix corn syrup and dry mustard until well blended. Drizzle corn syrup and mustard mixture over ham. Continue baking, basting frequently, until ham is well glazed and heated thoroughly, about 45 minutes. Makes 25 generous servings. Glaze may be used for vegetables if desired.

Orange Glazed Ham: Pour about one cup dark corn syrup into a mixing bowl. Stir in one teaspoon grated orange rind, one and one-half teaspoons dry mustard and one (1-pound 4-ounce) can crushed pineapple. Use as glaze for ham and follow directions for Easter Baked Ham.

Pineapple Glazed Ham: Pour one cup dark corn syrup into a mixing bowl. Stir in one teaspoon grated orange rind, one and one-half teaspoons dry mustard and one (1-pound 4-ounce) can crushed pineapple. Use as glaze for ham and follow directions for Easter Baked Ham.

Easter Bonnet Cake

- 1 package cake mix (for two layers)
- 1 recipe Fluffy White Frosting

Flowers, candies or other decorations

Prepare and bake cake according to directions on package, making one (8-inch) and one (9-inch) layer. Cool on wire rack. Lightly frost top of 9-inch layer. Set 8-inch layer on top so there is an even border of the 9-inch layer showing. Spread frosting on top of border and sides of 9-inch layer. Smooth with spatula. Spread generous amount of frosting on sides and top of 8-inch layer. Swirl with spoon or spatula. Decorate as desired to create an Easter bonnet. Makes 8 servings.

White Frosting

- 2 egg whites
- 1/2 cup light corn syrup
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine egg whites, corn syrup, sugar and salt in double boiler top. Beat slightly with electric mixer or rotary beater. Place over rapidly boiling water and heat constantly until frosting holds stiff peaks when beater is raised, about three to four minutes. Remove from boiling water. Continue beating one minute. Add vanilla. Beat well. Makes enough to cover top and sides of two (8 or 9-inch) layers.

Houghton College Choir Will Give Concert Friday Evening

The 45-voice Houghton College Choir will give a concert at 7:30 p.m. Friday in Grace Community Church, Lake Katrine.

Representing Houghton College, Houghton, New York, the choir is directed by Professor Donald L. Bailey and programs the finest sacred and secular literature ranging from the classics to contemporary. Sacred composers represented in their concerts include Bach, Pinkham, Britten, Foss, and Graun. Extended choral works such as Britten's "Rejoice in the Lamb" and Michael Fink's "Te Deum" will be presented in each concert. Among secular works performed by the choir, William Schuman's "Prelude for Voices" is the most exciting.

During January and February the choir gave weekend concerts in Buffalo and Olean, New York, with a nine-day tour planned during the April Easter vacation, to take them into the Philadelphia, New York City, and Albany area.

Houghton College, home of the choir since its formation in 1932, was founded by the Wesleyan Church in 1883. A fully accredited liberal arts college, Houghton is situated in New York State's Genesee Valley on Highway 19, 70 miles southwest of Rochester and 60 miles south of Buffalo. Today nearly 1200 students representing two-thirds of the United States and half a dozen foreign countries, are drawn from 30 denominations, are receiving a Christ-centered education geared for service in the modern world.

HAMILTON, BERMUDA — The first of Bermuda's College Weeks ends with a cruise on the "Canima," which carries merry-making students on a two-hour junket around the islets of the Great Sound. Enjoying the music of Hubert Smith, one of the island's leading calypso singers, are Nicci Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Young of 6598 Dixie Highway, Bridgeport, Mich., who attends Bishops Strachan School in Toronto, and Keith Hults, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hults of 30 Plymouth Avenue, Kingston. Keith is a student at St. Peter's in Peekskill; he is wearing his "do rag," the year's emblem for fun! Nicci left the island on March 26 and Keith on April 1. (Bermuda News Bureau photo).

Doing the Right Thing

A QUIZ ON RELATIONS WITH THE HANDICAPPED

Almost everyone comes in contact with a disabled or handicapped person from time to time, and many of us are at a loss as to how to act or what to say. The secret is to act as normally as possible — as if the unfortunate one were exactly like a normal person in every respect. Most disabled people are proud of their achievements — they do not want excessive sympathy or more help than they need. They do want recognition of their capabilities, and to some extent, praise and appreciation of their accomplishments.

The following quiz may help you to help others in a more intelligent manner. It is not really intended to test you, but to suggest to you the way to go about making someone else a happier person.

Q. When you meet someone with no right arm, do you disregard it and put out your hand to shake hands immediately?

A. No. You should wait for him to make the gesture. If he holds out his left hand, take it in your left hand; if he does nothing, just smile and say "hello."

Q. When a man in a wheelchair approaches a slope or a step do you push his chair for him?

A. Yes. But you ask him first if he would like your assistance.

Q. When talking to someone with an obvious disability do you mention it to make him feel at ease?

A. No. If he brings it up, discuss it openly. Otherwise you can assume he would rather not talk about it.

Q. When you see someone with a hearing aid, should you speak louder than you ordinarily do?

A. No. Hearing aids are adjusted to pick up a normal voice. Loud noises may actually be painful to the wearer.

Q. Does it help to talk to a deaf person by speaking close to his ear?

A. No. It is best to face him, since he probably "hears" best by lipreading.

Q. When speaking to a blind person, should you avoid the use of the word "see"?

A. Not at all. Talk to him naturally, and you will find he uses "look" and "see" just as you do.

Q. Is it correct to offer to help a blind person to cross the street?

A. Certainly, but again, ask him first if he wants help. Then, let him take your arm — don't grab his and shove him along.

Q. Is it proper to feed a

Seeing Eye dog whose master is visiting your home?

A. No. All food should be given to the dog by his master, so that he will never be distracted in any way or tempted to follow anyone else.

MIKE FERRARO IN SEATTLE UNIFORM

Mike Set on Pilot Roster

TEMPO, ARIZONA—The Seattle Pilots reduced their roster to the official 25-player limit Monday and Mike Ferraro of Kingston, N.Y., was among those retained by Manager Joe Schultz.

Ferraro, a former New York Yankee farmhand, has been battling veteran Rich Rollins for the third base spot in spring training.

It appears likely that the former Minnesota Twin slugger, obtained in the expansion draft, will open at the hot corner for the Pilots.

Except for some ragged days in the field, Rollins has had a good spring and led the Pilots for most of the spring training session. He has been near and above the .500 mark most of the way.

Ferraro has been hitting between .350 and .375 and playing brilliantly in the field.

Obtain Whitaker

The Pilots made trading news Monday when they shipped outfielder Lou Piniella to the Kansas City Royals for outfielder Steve Whitaker and minor league pitcher, John Gelmar, a southpaw.

Piniella batted .317 for Portland of the Pacific Coast League last season. Whitaker, a former minor league team-mate of Ferraro's, in a fragmented season hit .226 for Syracuse of the International League; .327 for Hawaii of the Pacific Coast League and .117 for the New York Yankees.

Both players were acquired by the American League clubs in the expansion draft.

The Pilots got down to the 25-player limit by sending seven pitchers to Vancouver of the Pacific Coast League and signing Bill Henry, veteran left-hander, to a contract.

Sent to Vancouver were Bob Lasko, Dick Baney, Dick Bates, Buzz Stephen, Paul Click, Darrell Brandon and Johnny Morris. All but Lasko were sent out on option.

Henry, 41, was in camp on a look-see basis. He will be used for short relief.

Rollins Likely Starter

With Rollins the likely starter at third base, the new Seattle team will probably open with an infield quartet of Rollins, Ray Oyler (ex-Detroit) at shortstop; Tommy Harper (ex-White Sox) at second base and Don Mincher, late of the California Angels at first base.

The Pilots have another former first baseman, Mike Hegan, in the outfield. Hegan was developed in the New York Yankee system.

Rollins' excellent performance at the plate has backed, temporarily at least, Ferraro's bid for full fledged major league starting status.

Rollins dipped to a career low .214 in 93 games with the Minnesota Twins in 1968. His once potent extra-base power also faded away, as he hit only 6 homers and knocked in 30 runs. He had five doubles and no triples. In both 1966 and 1967, he had batted .245, rapping 10 homers in 1966 and 6 in '67.

As a rookie, Rollins exploded on the Minnesota scene with a .298 average in 1962, with 16 homers and 96 runs batted in to earn Sophomore of the Year honors and make the American League all-star team that same season. He was voted Minnesota's most valuable player.

In OB Since 1962

Ferraro has been in organized baseball since breaking in with Fort Lauderdale in 1962. He was named all-star shortstop in the Western Carolina League in 1963; all-star third baseman, MVP, and batting champion (.317) in the Florida State League in 1964.

In spring training of 1968, Ferraro surprised New York Yankee brass by winning the James P. Dawson Award as the "Outstanding Yankees Rookie in spring training. He won the third base slot from Bobby Cox and opened the season. But after 13 games, he was benched and later sent back to Syracuse.

In the fragmented 1968 season, Ferraro who was called up for a few games in late September, batted .151 in 23 games for New York, but had an excellent season with Syracuse. He batted .293, with 4 homers and 41 runs batted in, batting in the No. 2 spot.

Ferraro was named to the International League's mid-season All Star squad and the overall 1968 all-star team with the Chiefs.

Stuart HR For Naught

By DICK COUCH

Associated Press Sports Writer

One dose of Dick Stuart's patent medicine revived California's sinking offense. But the patient died in a tragedy of errors—through no fault of the good Dr. Strangelove.

Stuart, the good hit-no field journeyman making a comeback bid with California, pinch hit a grand slam homer in the top of the sixth inning of Tuesday's exhibition game against Seattle.

The blast sent the Angels ahead 8-7, but Stuart's new teammates committed four errors in the bottom of the sixth, handing the Pilots seven unearned runs and a 14-9 victory.

Elsewhere, St. Louis edged Detroit 5-4 in 10 innings, Boston blanked the New York Yankees 2-0, Montreal beat Cincinnati 5-0, Kansas City trimmed Baltimore 3-0, Philadelphia slugged Minnesota 11-5, the Chicago Cubs whipped San Diego 8-5, the New York Mets drubbed Pittsburgh 7-3, Atlanta topped the Chicago White Sox 7-5 and Cleveland nipped San Francisco 6-5.

Los Angeles downed Houston 7-3 in 10 innings Tuesday night. Stuart, a non-roster California candidate who played in Japan the past two years after earning the Dr. Strangelove tag during turbulent stints with Pittsburgh, Boston, the Mets and the Dodgers, cleared the bases with his third spring homer.

But the Pilots quickly regained the edge on a walk, the four errors and singles by Jim Gosger, Jerry McNertney, Gus Gil, Mike Hegan and Tommy Davis.

Seattle has won five in a row and is 5-0 against the Angels. Detroit's Ron Woods dropped Tim McCarver's fly ball for a two-base error in the 10th and Steve Hunter's two-out single delivered the winning run for the Cardinals. Jim Price's eighth inning homer had pulled the Tigers even.

Ray Culp allowed just two hits for eight innings and Sparky Lyle pitched a hitless ninth, leading the Red Sox past the Yankees.

Montreal shut out the Reds behind Jim Grant, who scattered eight hits through eight innings, and Carroll Sembera.

Roger Nelson stopped his former Baltimore mates on four hits through the sixth and Mike Hedlund mopped up with three perfect innings as the Royals handed the Orioles their fourth setback in 21 spring starts.

Three-run homers by Mike Ryan and Ricardo Joseph powered the Phillies past Minnesota. Billy Williams slammed a three-run homer and Ron Santo connected with one on in the Cubs' triumph over San Diego.

Tommie Agee lashed a homer, double and single for the Mets, who cuffed Pittsburgh starter Bob Veale for five runs in the first two innings.

The Braves rallied for four runs in the ninth to overtake the White Sox.

Richie Scheinblum delivered the Indians' winning run with his second double, a two-out shot in the ninth.

Bill Sudakis' sacrifice fly, Wes Parker's two-run single and Paul Popovich's RBI single broke up the Dodgers-Astros duel in the 10th after an error by Doug Rader opened the gates.

Although pleased with the OCIAA's decision, Dr. Venezia expressed hope that a total realignment of schools in Section Nine would soon come about.

Dr. Venezia, DUSO League president, said that superintendents of schools in Section Nine and Dutchess County would sit down after Easter and discuss the thorny issue of realignment.

Venezia said that he hasn't given up completely the idea of continuing the Thanksgiving Day football game against Middletown, a series which began in 1897. "I would like to see it continue. Some of the best football played on a scholastic level has been played in this series," he said.

However, with the OCIAA scheduled to have nine football schools competing in 1970, chances are slim unless the state allows more than an eight-game slate or some progress in realignment is realized.

Applications from Kingston, Newburgh and Middletown were turned down last October by the DCSL for the second time in four years.

OCIAA Executive Secretary Harold Innocent of Goshen said that Port Jervis will compete in eight sports including football, cross-country, basketball, wrestling, baseball, track, tennis and golf.

Innocent said that the league had not yet decided which division Port will play in, but it were still doing it but we just played well against it."

Clark called it his "best game of the year... my best ever, considering the circumstances."

Boston suffered at the foul line, sinking only 24 of 41 with league leader Larry Siegfried missing five of nine.

San Diego's John Block scored 10 of his 15 points in the final period as the Rockets batted from behind. They trailed by 17 in the first half but sliced Atlanta's lead to three after three quarters.

Block's 20-foot jump shot with 4:54 left put the Rockets ahead to stay 93-91. Elvin Hayes contributed 26 points. Zelmo Beaty was high for the Hawks with 31.

Baltimore Coach Gene Shue thought his team played well against the Knicks on Sunday despite dropping a 119-116 decision when New York rallied in the final six minutes.

"We had a chance to win," Shue said. "If we can play that well again Wednesday night, I'll take our chances."

The Los Angeles-San Francisco clash is a pivotal one and both coaches know it.

A prediction by State Conservation Department biologists that approximately 92,000 deer died of starvation in New York state this winter has drawn a quick and predictable reaction from William J. Meyer, co-chairman of the Game Committee of the Federated Sportsmen's Clubs of Ulster county.

Meyer, a staunch anti-party permit spokesman, suggests that figures for deer starvation in Region 8 are misleading. He also hints not too subtly that the Conservation Department is padding deer kill figures to support its stand for another increase in party permits.

"Reports on deer starvation by game biologists, Joe Steely of Region 8 should be clarified on where and how," writes Meyer. "If there is widespread starvation, as has been suggested by the Conservation Department biologists it is in areas such as Clove Valley in Dutchess county where large estates and elite clubs that allow no deer hunting at all, cause problems like this."

"These conditions should not be permitted to cast a reflection on the rest of Region 8 as a starvation crisis," he adds.

MEYER POINTS OUT that in the Delaware area, deer come from long distances, including Pennsylvania, to yard up for the winter.

"There is no doubt," Meyer explains, "that some will die from the hazards of winter, dogs and just old age."

And now Meyer gets his licks in good. "The figure that 92,000 will die of starvation in New York state seems to be just a prelude for more party permits with a one-for-one basis of getting them with a lot more money to be realized by the CD from the $5 each party permits," Meyer charges. "The Conservation Department has become one of the largest deer meat sellers with little upkeep on the deer herd. All it needs to say is that starvation exists, issue more permits and make more money..."

THE ADIRONDACKS, says Meyer, will be the hardest hit this year due to early snows which started in November. Areas around Indian Lake, Moose River Plains, Old Forge, Newcombe and Blue Mountain Lake will show a decrease in the herd population for 1969.

"Here it will truly be starvation," Meyer agrees. "We shall watch to see how the Conservation Department reacts to these areas in regard to party permits."

Meyer says the county federation contends that in areas of forever wild, "the Conservation Department has the right to cut trees for food for the deer herd but doesn't."

"They will tell you (quote from Joseph Steely, biologist) that the feeding of deer is frowned upon by the Conservation Department. Let's face it, the Conservation Department hasn't the manpower and won't spend the money to get it."

MANY CLUBS OF THE county federation that are truly concerned, says Meyer, "do take time and money to see that food is available for small herds in their area. Corn, alfalfa, hay and cutting of browse are the main food supplied by these clubs."

On the subject of dogs, Meyer notes that "dogs are a main concern to the county federation and a solution to his problem has been hard to come by. In the lower Hudson valley, the kill by dogs is far more than by starvation. Clubs in the federation have spent many hours trying to protect deer yards from these marauding dogs. This is the public's problem as a whole... not just the sportsmen."

"If an area such as Clove Valley is in an overabundance of deer, the federation heartily agrees that they should be harvested to bring it in line with feeding conditions," Meyer points out. "There are other areas however, such as these, including utilities, Boy Scout camps and other private holdings which are in no way connected with sportsmen groups. This is why accurate reporting of these areas should so state and not make it look like the whole Region 8 is in overabundance of deer, or for the whole state for that matter."

MEYER ASSERTS that when you see groups of deer in a deer yard in the winter time, it does not mean that they stay there all year round.

"It is a fact, confirmed by the Conservation Department that these same deer will travel upwards of 50 miles or more," Meyer concludes.

THE HASSLE BETWEEN the biologists and the gunners in the field over control of the deer herd is ageless.

Meyer, an award winning conservationist, makes an able propagandist for the anti-party permit forces. Our information comes from Conservation Department representatives. If the CD is handing out biased and colored statistics to bolster its arguments for additional party permits, so let it be.

Of one thing we are dead sure. Not even King Solomon in his most discerning moments could ever have solved this dispute.

NHL Sets Playoff Openers

(By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Eight National Hockey League teams embark tonight on the long road that will lead one of them to the Stanley Cup, hockey's most cherished trophy.

Montreal, champion of the East Division, begins defense of the Cup at home against the New York Rangers, who finished third. Boston hosts Toronto in the other East opener.

In the West Division, St. Louis, which won the title by 19 points, is at home against Philadelphia and Oakland hosts Los Angeles.

All series are best-of-7.

Claude Ruel, who coached Montreal to its 20th title in his first season behind the bench, believes the series between the Canadiens and Rangers will turn on goaltending.

"It will be a skating series," said Ruel, whose club, like New York, thrives on rink-length dashes. "But the difference could be in the goaltending."

Ed Giacomin, an ironman who played 70 of 76 regular season games and was runner-up in the Vezina Trophy race behind St. Louis, will be in the nets for New York. Ruel has split the Canadian goaltending between veteran Gump Worsley, who played 30 games, and young Rogatien Vachon, who played 36. Worsley was the likely choice to open the series.

The second game of the series will be played Thursday and when the teams move to New York for the third and fourth games Saturday and Sunday, the Canadiens will be up against an 18-game Ranger unbeaten streak at home.

With 15 victories and three ties since Jan. 2, the Rangers tied a club record for home ice success. The mark was set in 1939-40, the last time New York won the Stanley Cup.

The home ice could play a major role in the Boston-Toronto series too. The Maple Leafs have not won a game in Boston all season and the Bruins haven't won in Toronto since Nov. 27, 1965.

Harry Sinden, who coached the Bruins to a second place finish, their highest in a decade, said Boston's inability to win in Toronto won't hurt his club.

"We don't worry about it," said Sinden, "because if worse comes to worse, we don't have to win there. We can take four games here, in Boston."

Punch Imlach, Toronto's coach, admitted the Bruins had the edge. "Only once in the last 20 years has a fourth place team come on to win the Stanley Cup," said Punch, whose Leafs finished fourth.

In the West, Philadelphia, which lost only two of its last 15 games in the drive for a playoff berth, hopes to keep the momentum going against the St. Louis Blues.

Keith Allen, coach of the Flyers, said he didn't mind facing the West champion Blues in the opening round. "They're the best team we'll have to face in our division, so why not face them now? If we get by them, we should win the division playoffs," said Allen.

The Blues boast the best goaltending in the NHL in Vezina Trophy winners Jacques Plante and Glenn Hall but their defense will be without 44-year-old Doug Harvey, who suffered a slight head injury in an auto accident Sunday. Jim Roberts will replace Harvey, who is expected to miss at least two games.

Oakland, the Cinderella team that moved from a last place finish in 1967-68 to second place this season, figures to have its hands full with Los Angeles. It wasn't until the last two games of the regular season that the Seals managed to beat the Kings.

"We have to work hard all the time against L.A.," said Fred Glover, freshman coach of the Seals. "They're a skating team all the time and keep moving. If we work hard it's no problem, but it has got to be for 60 minutes."

Anglers Brave Cold To Hook the Big Ones

By MORT LAFFIN

KINGSTON

Although hampered by extremely cold temperatures and high water, the trout fishing season got under way in fine style Monday, with many of our local anglers making the limit before sun-down.

Feeder streams, such as the Chichester, afforded the best fishing because of the lower water level. Main streams, including the Esopus were very high and running fast. The fact that the "Portal" appears to be running wide open, caused the Esopus to be too high for good fishing.

Weather is also playing a big part in the amount of fishermen out and the amount of fish being caught. Yesterday, temperatures as low as 12 degrees in Poughkeepsie and an average of 18 to 20 degrees in the Kingston area took its toll on the actual numbers of anglers. It was the coldest opening day since 1964.

Reports coming in today from check points such as Carroll's Bait Box in Woodstock and Folkert Brothers Sporting Goods Store in Poughkeepsie, revealed that most of the trout taken were of the brown variety, although many rainbow were also hooked.

Carroll's stated that an eight-pound brown was the biggest one seen in the area yesterday. It was taken at the Dividing Weir in the Ashokan Reservoir. Several rainbows and a good amount of Pike were also netted.

Folkert's reported that quite a few "Big Ones" were taken out of the Chichester, including several "Bows". This stream appears to have been the most popular because of the depth of the water in the main streams.

Area fishermen were using worms, salmon eggs and jigs as bait while the "tourists" started off with flies. However, most of them took a lead from the locals and began using worms and eggs.

Mike Keenan won the Finger Lake 9th Annual Trout Derby at Naples yesterday with a 14-pound, 11-ounce trout, but failed to throw back a foul-hooked trout and had to add a summons from a conservation officer to his creel.

By noon yesterday, officials had tallied 155 trout taken around Naples, as compared to 58 last year. At day's end, 344 were entered, setting a new record, he previous best opening day was 197 set two years ago.

On the local scene, anglers figure this weekend to be a big one. Many people had a half-day off on Friday and all day Saturday.

Is Maravich ABA-Bound?

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI)—The Houston franchise of the American Basketball Association will move to North Carolina next season as the "Carolina Cougars," millionaire Jim Gardner announced Tuesday.

Overshadowing the impact of the state's first professional sports team, however, was speculation that the Cougars would bring LSU coach Press Maravich back to North Carolina. And if Press came, the speculation ran, could Pete be far behind?

Pete is "Pistol Pete" Maravich, Press' all-American son and two-time national scoring champion. Pete has a year's eligibility left at LSU and could not sign a professional contract, but few believed the Cougars would sign the father without being assured of getting the son.

If such a deal were in the making, the other ABA clubs might waive draft rights to "Pistol Pete" in order to get him in the league.

Coach Maravich was on a recruiting trip to Indiana and not available for comment. Gardner said the Cougar coach, whose name would be disclosed at a news conference in Greensboro, N.C., April 9, would have a "North Carolina background."

This touched off quick speculation that Gardner had stolen a million dollar march on the older National Basketball Association by signing Maravich as coach. Maravich was a winner at Clemson and then at North Carolina State in Raleigh before going to LSU. Son Pete broke all available records as a prep player at Raleigh's Broughton High, and then followed his dad to LSU.

Also figuring in speculation as new head coach of the Cougars was Horace "Bones" McKinney, former Wake Forest basketball coach. But one source said McKinney had turned down the job, as he once did an offer from the Baltimore Bullets.

Gardner and two business associates, Leonard Rawls and Bob Gorham, all of Rocky Mount, N.C., bought the founding Houston franchise last year. The Mavericks, in their second year, finished last in the Western Division of the ABA and averaged a miserable few hundred spectators per home game.

TROY was within two points, 114-112, with eight minutes left. It was a tough, foul-ridden contest in which the Chargers lost two 40-point producers in the final quarter. George Mardigan, who led the losers with 44 points, was ousted with 4:50 remaining and Al Shufeldt exited with 2:50 still left to play.

Another Charger, Joe Bowden, was banished from the game for committing a flagrant foul against DeMicco's Mike Derrenbacher. Uhl amassed his record tying total with 23 baskets and 16 free throws, as the Motormen outscored 53-52 from the field.

LONDON—Ralph Charles, Great Britain, stopped Luis Vinales, New York, 1, welterweights.
ORLANDO, Fla.—Ray Anderson, 181, Akron, Ohio, stopped Willie McIntyre, 182, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., 2.

The game was played in four 10-minute quarters which counts, in part, for the high against the Albany YMCA, scoring. DeMicco's quickly set the pattern when Uhl and Ron Thomas hit on eight of their first nine shots. Thomas, who scored 27 points in Monday's semi-final win, canned 28 last night. Other DeMicco's in double figures were Charlie Lay 15, Derrenbacher 11, Bill Boines 10 and Warren Gritman 12. Gritman came off the bench to play a fine game for the Kings-ton squad. His rebounding was exceptional.

The game ended with Uhl resting attempts and he paid high tribute to his players. "It was a tremendous team effort," he said. The players clicked beautifully and the shooting percentages were extremely high, even allowing for the extra eight minutes in each game. Derrenbacher, who was slammed heavily into a wall by Bowden, did not suffer any serious injury. He got up, brushed it off and returned to the game.

Government Probing Those Giveaway Games

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission, under attack as a do-nothing agency, has been called on to finally take action on gas station giveaway games—the giveaways denounced by critics as deceptive, fraudulent and costly to unprotected consumers.

The commission, ending six weeks of hearings on the matter today, was asked on one hand to ban the games entirely. On the other, it was asked to take any action involving the games. In between were calls for the agency to try regulating the games before considering a total ban.

Before the hearings began, an FTC staff report denounced the games as deceptive, fraudulent and costly to consumers who were said to have only a slight chance, if any, to win a prize. The staff report charged the cost of the games, also used by food stores, are passed on to the consumer in the form of higher prices.

Seven leading producers of the retail games pleaded today with the commissioners to try an outright ban.

The Humble Oil Co., however, denied Tuesday that the commission even has the authority to regulate—much less ban—the games.

Of all the major oil companies, only Atlantic Richfield urged the FTC to prohibit the promotions, although representatives of retail gasoline dealers urged it last month to outlaw them completely.

The retailers said they were forced to use the games by the national oil companies as part of their franchises.

An Atlantic Richfield spokesman said the games had become so widely used that one company's promotions are offset by another's and continued use will only stir further public disfavor.

But the company contended that one company cannot abandon the games unilaterally without being placed at a competitive disadvantage and federal action is essential.

Lindsay Asks Full Report On Data in Death of Girl

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mayor John V. Lindsay today is looking into reports in a case where a 3-year-old girl was beaten to death and thrown into the East River.

The girl, Roxanne Felumaro, was returned to her natural mother and stepfather, George Poplis, after a family court ignored opposition by the New York Foundling Hospital and the child's foster parents, Poplis, charged with murder, is accused of beating the child with his fists.

Lindsay said Tuesday he was "shocked and grieved" at the death of Roxanne Felumaro and called for a report on "the circumstances of her transfer from the safety of a foster home on a family court order."

He is expected to receive a report from Dr. Vincent J. Fontana, chairman of the mayor's task force on child abuse, "with in a few days" according to mayoral aides.

He also asked for a copy of the investigation now underway by Judge Harold Stevens, presiding justice of the Appellate Division.

Albany Mugging Suspect Charged With Robbery

COLONIE, N.Y. (AP) — One of two men believed to be involved in a bizarre mugging, and shooting in this Albany suburb was in custody of Albany police today, charged with a second robbery.

Police identified him as James Albert Maddex, 19, of 350 Hudson Ave. He was charged with robbery in connection with a theft at a sandwich shop Tuesday night.

Colonie police said Maddex has been identified as one of two suspects they are seeking in connection with a pellet-gun wounding of a teen-age boy earlier Tuesday night. They said a warrant for his arrest would be obtained today.

Maddex and another person, Colonie police said, picked up Mark O'Connell, 17, of Menands, who was hitchhiking on Broadway in Menands.

Dufault Urges Peace March Participation

HILLSDALE Peter Kane Dufault, former Liberal Party candidate for Congress and current co-chairman of the Hudson Valley Council on New Politics, today issued a call to "everyone who can walk" to join the April 5 peace march in New York City.

"This will be the first general demonstration directed at the Nixon administration," Dufault said.

"Until now it's been Johnson's war and Johnson's critics. I think it is absolutely vital that those of us particularly war veterans, who oppose the Vietnam War turn out to the last man on April 5."

"There should be no misunderstanding in Washington, either about our numbers of about our bitterness at the prolongation of the brutalities and the deceptions that have characterized this conflict from the beginning."

Service Opens

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Boston-New York link in the nation's high-speed rail service will open on a limited basis next Tuesday. Using aircraft turbine engines, the train, run by the New Haven, has reached speeds of 170 miles an hour in tests.

Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe, in making the announcement, said initial service—one round trip daily—would not be significantly faster than the present trains' time of four hours and 15 minutes.

Ellenville Central School closes at noon today and will reopen April 14.

Rondout Central will have a half-day Thursday and Highland will have a full day Thursday. Both return April 14.

Some Schools Close Today

Easter Closing For Fish, Rolison, Bell Offices

KINGSTON The Kingston offices of Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr., Sen. Jay P. Rolison and Assemblyman H. Clark Bell will be closed this Friday and Saturday in observance of the Easter Holiday.

Although Congressman Fish announced earlier this week that he was cancelling all public appearances during a 30-day mourning period for his wife, Julia, who died March 26, his offices in Kingston, Poughkeepsie and Hudson remain open with the exception of the Easter holiday.

Shouts Approval WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Tuesday shouted approval of a bill to authorize the Navy to pay $15,000 bonuses to submarine officers who agree to remain in the service four years beyond their first tour of duty. About 1,100 officers are affected. The bill goes to the Senate.

Dear Abby

Be a Good Wife NOW

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1969 by Chicago Tribune - N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I have been married only two years and have already violated our marriage beyond forgiveness. My husband had to be away for six months, and during his absence I lived alone in our apartment. I was lonely, but everything went along fine until about a month before his return. At this time I met a man, and his attentions led me to the most regrettable experience of my life. I never thought it could happen to me, but I was unfaithful to my husband.

Abby, my husband is the most wonderful man in the world, and I love him so very much. The guilt from this "affair" is driving me out of my mind. I am trying to be the most perfect wife possible to make it up to him, but my conscience is torturing me. In a way I would like to tell my husband, but I know it would kill him and he may never trust me again. Please tell me what to do. And don't condemn me for my actions. I've already condemned myself enough.

DEAR GUILTY: Telling your husband would be cruel and unwise. If you feel the need to "confess" further, tell your clergyman. (Frankly, you've told me and I'm telling about 55 million people, which is more than enough.) Quit punishing yourself, and forget the unfortunate incident, continue to be a good wife, and if your husband ever has to leave town on an extended tip, go with him or ask a friend (a girl) to stay with you to relieve your loneliness.

DEAR ABBY: What can you get for appearing in a see-thru blouse in Fargo, N.D.?

JUST CURIOUS: DEAR JUST: Pneumonia, for sure. Arrested probably.

DEAR ABBY: I just read where a well-known marriage counselor and psychologist says, "Couples who fight together, stay together, and a fight a day keeps the doctor away." I would like to know how you feel about this?

BIRMINGHAM: DEAR BIRMINGHAM: That well-known marriage counselor and psychologist can go to his church and I'll go to mine. It doesn't take any brains to pick a fight. Civilized people learn to control their tempers and keep their mouths shut. And it's my view that a fight a day keeps a lot of doctors busy.

DEAR ABBY: A man wrote in saying he was upset because the doctor had told him he could never have children, and now his wife was pregnant. He says the baby can't be his. Well listen to this:

Twenty years ago I married, and we had four children, then my husband got sick and when he recovered the doctor told him he couldn't father any more children. He went to FOUR other doctors and they all told him the same thing. That makes FIVE doctors, right? We didn't care because we had a nice family. Then all of a sudden I found myself pregnant!

Abby, my hand to God, I never had another man touch me. My husband refused to believe me. He left me and filed for divorce. I got myself a good lawyer and fought it tooth and nail. The courts gave me custody of the children and support.

My husband tried to straighten it out later with me when he saw that the boy looked, walked, talked, and even ACTED exactly like him, but it was too late. I wouldn't take him back because he didn't trust me when I was innocent. So, Abby tell that man that here is one case where FIVE doctors were wrong, so his doctor can be wrong to.

TWO HARBORS, MINN.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 697, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

APART: (Q.) My older sister ignores me. We're so far apart it's pathetic.

She's 21 and I'm 18. When we were kids we were very close. But something has happened. I don't think it's my fault.

Most sisters I know are very close, and the way mine acts hurts me.—A Fan in Connecticut.

(A.) When a girl is out of high school and attending college or working, and her younger sister or sisters are still in high school, they often go through a period in which they seem to have little in common.

Be patient with your sister. You will be catching up with her soon and the gulf that you resent now will disappear.

Be careful not to say or do anything now that you'd regret when you and your sister again feel closer to each other.

SPORTS QUIZ: (Q.) My boy friend loves sports. I can take sports if I have to, but had rather not. What should I do?—Confused in Philadelphia.

(A.) If you care enough for him and he cares enough for you, you can learn to live with his interest in sports and he can learn to live with your interests in other things.

Only you two can decide whether you care enough. (Want personal answers to your questions? Write to Jean Adams, Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Most bridge players suffer from the no-trump complex. In its mildest form the sufferer feels that he can play no-trump contracts a trifle better than his partner. In its most virulent form the victim feels that he has been divinely appointed to play all no-trump contracts and that he should bid no-trump at the first opportunity to prevent his partner from getting there first.

This complex was more prevalent among auction players than it is today and carried over into the early days of contract.

The bidding in the box took place at both tables in the 1930 National Team Championship finals. Since the diamond jack dropped nicely both declarers had no trouble collecting 12 tricks and no one even considered that the slam which made easily in either no-trump, spades or diamonds was bid.

Five or 10 years later any really good pair would get there. South would bid one spade instead of two no-trump. North might jump in spades or he might even cue bid in hearts. Either way North and South would get to either six spades or six no-trump.

Today any fair pair would get to the slam. The combination of a fit in two suits plus 29 high-card points including three aces and four kings would be good enough.

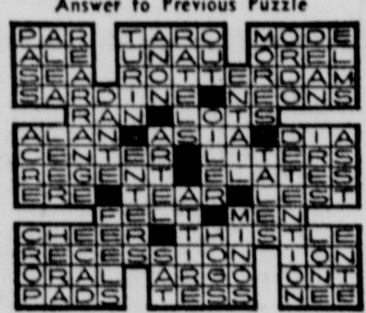

Some modern scientists would get to slam somewhat differently. South would make a negative double over the one heart overcall. This modern gadget shows at least seven points, including four spades and is for takout. North would like his hand and proceed to either cue bid hearts or jump in spades.

Of course, a modern East might not overcall with his jack-high suit, but in that case South would still respond one spade and get to the slam.

Nugent Leaves After Year in Vietnam War

SAIGON (AP) — One of ex-President Lyndon B. Johnson's sons-in-law left Vietnam for home today with a medal. Airman 1. C. Patrick J. Nugent, married to Johnson's daughter Luci, completed his year of Vietnam duty and took a plane for Bergstrom Air force Base in Texas. He will be discharged there.

He was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross while loadmaster of a C123 loaded with troops on Jan. 2.

An Air Force spokesman said the twin-engine transport had 55 soldiers of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division aboard when it came under mortar attack. But Nugent and the other crew members accomplished their mission "without battle damage or crew injury," the citation said.

Johnson's other son-in-law, Marine Maj. Charles Robb, is scheduled to leave Vietnam later this month. Robb, served about six months as a company commander and now has a staff job at the headquarters of the 1st Marine Division.

Few Register in Red Hook

By TIM SCHUSTER
RED HOOK
Approximately 50 persons attended a public meeting on two proposed Red Hook Central School building bond issues Tuesday night at the high school.

The informational meeting concerned a 36-room addition to the Mill Road Elementary School, estimated cost $2,160,000, and a $465,000 high school auditorium with a seating capacity of 1,000.

Vote is April 15

Today is the final voter registration day. Voting will take place April 15 from 2 to 9 p.m. at the high school.

As of Tuesday night, only 636 of a possible 4,500 district voters had registered.

Supervising Principal Russell J. Keefe outlined the various forms of state aid available to the school district, emphasizing that a 25 per cent incentive aid would be available until June of 1970, after which time it would be dropped.

It was pointed out by Keefe that the Red Hook School District lowest tax rate was the lowest of 13 districts in Dutchess County. It is now $14.26 per thousand. It was $13 in 1959.

Keefe also explained the method of computing true tax rates from assessed valuation, and why the assessed figures varied so great.

STAATSBURG
Both engines of the Staatsburg Volunteer Fire Department answered a call at 10 p.m. Monday evening at the Mesuda homestead, an abandoned house taken over by New York State in the autumn of 1968.

The company, under the direction of Fire Chief Jim Horan, battled the blaze for four hours, leaving the scene at 2 a.m.

Approximately half of the structure was destroyed before firemen were able to quell the fire.

No immediate cause of the blaze was evident. It was the second in a week in this area with no apparent cause, and some citizens are laying the blame on prank playing youngsters.

Charge Woman With Assault

A charge of second degree assault was lodged against Sandra Hayward of this village Tuesday night after an alleged altercation in her apartment with Phyllis Freeman, who notified police.

Bail was set at $1,000, by Judge Elias.

She was arrested by Patrolman Green at the scene of the alleged fight.

The case was adjourned until April 8 at 2 p.m. for a preliminary hearing. She will be represented by Joseph Cooperman.

A Question About Floor Covering.

What causes tiles or linoleum seams to open up?

Tiles or linoleum laid over hardwood floors is the prime cause of this; due to expansion and contraction of the floors from summer to winter. We recommend under-layment to correct this.
